ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING GUIDANCE FOR THE ACCOUNTANCY SECTOR
Introduction

Accountants are key gatekeepers for the financial system, facilitating vital transactions that underpin the UK economy. As such, they have a significant role to play in ensuring their services are not used to further a criminal purpose. As professionals, accountants must act with integrity and uphold the law, and they must not engage in criminal activity.

This guidance is based on the law and regulations as of 26 June 2017. It covers the prevention of money laundering and the countering of terrorist financing. It is intended to be read by anyone who provides audit, accountancy, tax advisory, insolvency, or trust and company services in the United Kingdom and has been approved and adopted by the UK accountancy AML supervisory bodies.

The guidance has been prepared jointly by the CCAB bodies:

Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales

Association of Chartered Certified Accountants

Institute of Chartered Accountants of Scotland

Chartered Accountants Ireland

The Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy

It has been approved and adopted by the UK accountancy supervisory bodies:

Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales – www.icaew.com/

Association of Accounting Technicians – www.aat.org.uk/

Association of Taxation Technicians – www.att.org.uk/

Association of International Accountants – www.aiaworldwide.com/

Institute of Certified Bookkeepers – www.bookkeepers.org.uk/

Chartered Institute of Management Accountants – www.cimaglobal.com/

Institute of Financial Accountants – www.ifa.org.uk/

International Association of Bookkeepers – www.iab.org.uk/

Chartered Institute of Taxation – www.tax.org.uk/

Insolvency Practitioners Association – www.insolvency-practitioners.org.uk/

Insolvency Service – www.gov.uk/government/organisations/insolvency-service

HM Revenue & Customs – www.gov.uk/government/organisations/hm-revenue-customs

Institute of Chartered Accountants of Scotland – www.icas.com

Chartered Accountants Ireland - https://www.charteredaccountants.ie/
CONTENTS

1 ABOUT THIS GUIDANCE 5
  1.1 What is the purpose of this guidance? 5
  1.2 Who is this guidance for? 6
  1.3 What is the legal status of this guidance? 6

2 MONEY LAUNDERING DEFINED 8
  2.1 What is money laundering? 8
  2.2 What is the legal and regulatory framework? 8

3 RESPONSIBILITY & OVERSIGHT 10
  3.1 What are the responsibilities of a business? 10
  3.2 How should sole practitioners implement these requirements? 10
  3.3 What are the responsibilities of Senior Management/Money Laundering Reporting Officer? 10
  3.4 How might the ‘MLRO’ role be split? 13
  3.5 What policies, procedures and controls are required? 13

4 RISK BASED APPROACH 17
  4.1 What is the role of the risk based approach (RBA)? 17
  4.2 What is the role of senior management? 17
  4.3 How should a risk analysis be designed? 18
  4.4 What is the risk profile of the business? 18
  4.5 How should procedures take account of the RBA? 19
  4.6 What is client risk? 20
  4.7 What is service risk? 20
  4.8 What is geographic risk? 20
  4.9 What is sector risk? 21
  4.10 What is delivery channel risk? 21
  4.11 Why is documentation important? 21

5 CUSTOMER DUE DILIGENCE (CDD) 22
  5.1 What is the purpose of CDD? 22
  5.2 When should customer due diligence be carried out? 30
  5.3 How should CDD be applied? 32
  5.4 What happens if customer due diligence cannot be performed? 38

6 SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITY REPORTING 40
  6.1 What must be reported? 40
  6.2 When and how should a report be made? 46
  6.3 What is consent and why is it important? 51
  6.4 What should happen after an onward report has been made? 53

7 RECORD KEEPING 56
  7.1 Why may existing document retention policies need to be changed? 56
  7.2 What should be considered regarding retention policies? 56
  7.3 What considerations apply to SARS and consent requests? 56
  7.4 What considerations apply to training records? 56
  7.5 Where should reporting records be located? 57
  7.6 What do firms need to do regarding third-party arrangements? 57
  7.7 What are the requirements regarding the deletion of personal data? 57
8 TRAINING AND AWARENESS

8.1 Who should be trained and who is responsible for it? 58
8.2 What should be included in the training? 58
8.3 When should training be completed? 59
1 ABOUT THIS GUIDANCE

• What is the purpose of this guidance?
• Who is the guidance for?
• What is the legal status of this guidance?

1.1 What is the purpose of this guidance?

1.1.1 This guidance has been prepared to help accountants (including tax advisers and insolvency practitioners) comply with their obligations under UK legislation to prevent, recognise and report money laundering. Compliance with it will ensure compliance with the relevant legislation (including that related to counter terrorist financing) and professional requirements.

1.1.2 The term ‘must’ is used throughout to indicate a mandatory legal or regulatory requirement. Businesses may seek an alternative interpretation of the UK anti-money laundering and terrorist financing (AML) regime, but they must be able to justify their decision to their anti-money laundering supervisory authority.

1.1.3 Where the law or regulations require no specific course of action, ‘should’ is used to indicate good practice sufficient to satisfy statutory and regulatory requirements. Businesses should consider their own particular circumstances when determining whether any such ‘good practice’ suggestions are indeed appropriate to them. Alternative practices can be used, but businesses must be able to explain their reasons to their anti-money laundering supervisory authority, including why they consider them compliant with law and regulation.

1.1.4 The UK anti-money laundering regime applies only to defined services carried out by designated businesses. This guidance assumes that many businesses will find it easier to apply certain AML processes and procedures to all of their services, but this is a decision for the business itself. It can be unnecessarily costly to apply anti-money laundering provisions to services that do not fall within the UK AML regime.

1.1.5 This guidance refers, in turn, to guidance issued by bodies other than CCAB. When those bodies revise or replace their guidance, the references in this document should be assumed to refer to the latest versions.

1.1.6 Businesses may use AML guidance issued by other trade and professional bodies, including the Joint Money Laundering Steering Group (JMLSG), where that guidance is better aligned with the specific circumstances faced by the business. Where the business relies on alternative guidance, they must (in accordance with 1.1.2 of this guidance) be in a position to justify this reliance to their anti-money laundering supervisory authority.

1.1.7 The law which comprises the UK AML regime is contained in the following legislation and relevant amending statutory instruments:

• The Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (POCA) as amended by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 (SOCPA);
• The Terrorism Act 2000 (TA 2000) (as amended by the Anti-Terrorism Crime and Security Act 2001 (ATCSA) and the Terrorism Act 2006 (TA 2006));
• The Money Laundering, Terrorist Financing and Transfer of Funds (Information on the Payer) Regulations 2017 (the 2017 Regulations);
• Terrorist Asset-Freezing Act 2010;
POCA and TA 2000 contain the offences that can be committed by individuals or organisations. The 2017 Regulations set out the systems and controls that businesses are obliged to possess, as well as the related offences that can be committed by businesses and key individuals within them.

1.2 Who is this guidance for?

1.2.1 This guidance is addressed to businesses covered by Regulations 8(2)(c) and 8(2)(e) of the 2017 Regulations. This means anyone who, in the course of business in the UK, acts as:

- Regulation 8(2)(e):
  - A trust or company service provider (Regulation 12(2)).
- Regulation 8(2)(c):
  - An auditor (Regulation 11(a));
  - An external accountant (Regulation 11(c));
  - An insolvency practitioner (Regulation 11(b));
  - A tax adviser (Regulation 11(d)).

For the purposes of this guidance the services listed above are collectively referred to as defined services. The scope of what would be considered carrying on business in the UK is broad, and would include certain cross border business models where day to day management takes place from UK registered office or UK head office.

1.2.2 Regulation 11(c) of the 2017 Regulations defines an external accountant as someone who provides accountancy services to other persons by way of business. There is no definition given for the term accountancy services, however for the purposes of this guidance it includes any service which involves the recording, review, analysis, calculation or reporting of financial information, and which is provided under arrangements other than a contract of employment.

1.2.3 This guidance does not cover any other services, guidance for which may be available from other sources. Businesses supervised by HMRC that provide both accountancy services and trust or company services should generally follow this guidance but also have regard to the HMRC ‘Anti-money laundering guidance for trust or company services providers’. Businesses solely providing trust or company services and supervised by HMRC should follow the HMRC guidance.

1.2.4 Guidance related to secondees and subcontractors can be found in APPENDIX B.

1.3 What is the legal status of this guidance?

1.3.1 Because this guidance has been approved by HM Treasury, the UK courts must take account of its contents when deciding whether a business subject to it has committed an offence under the 2017 Regulations, or Section 330-331 of POCA. This guidance is not intended to be exhaustive. If in doubt, seek appropriate advice or consult your anti-money laundering supervisory authority.

If an anti-money laundering supervisory authority is called upon to judge whether a business has complied with its general ethical or regulatory requirements, it is likely to be influenced by whether or not the business has applied the provisions of this guidance.
2 MONEY LAUNDERING DEFINED

- What is money laundering?
- What is the legal and regulatory framework?

2.1 What is money laundering?

2.1.1 Money laundering is defined very widely in UK law. It includes all forms of using or possessing criminal property (as well as facilitating the use or possession) regardless of how it was obtained.

2.1.2 Criminal property may take any form, including:
- Money or money’s worth;
- Securities;
- A reduction in a liability; and
- Tangible or intangible property.

Money laundering can involve the proceeds of offending in the UK but also of conduct overseas that would have been an offence had it taken place in the UK. There is no need for the proceeds to pass through the UK. For the purposes of this guidance money laundering also includes terrorist financing. There are no materiality or de minimis exceptions to money laundering or terrorist financing (MLTF) offences.

2.1.3 Money laundering activity can include:
- A single act (for example, possessing the proceeds of one’s own crime);
- Complex and sophisticated schemes involving multiple parties;
- Multiple methods of handling and transferring criminal property; or
- Concealing criminal property or entering into arrangements to assist others to conceal criminal property.

2.1.4 Businesses need to be alert to the risks posed by:
- Clients;
- Suppliers;
- Employees; and
- The customers, suppliers, employees and associates of clients.

2.1.5 Neither the business nor its client needs to have been party to money laundering for a reporting obligation to arise (see Section six of this guidance).

2.2 What is the legal and regulatory framework?

2.2.1 The primary money laundering offences are defined by POCA, as amended by SOCPA. Inside or outside the regulated sector someone commits a money laundering offence if they:
- Conceal, disguise, convert, transfer or remove criminal property from England and Wales, Scotland or Northern Ireland (Section 327 of POCA);
- Enter into, or become involved in, an arrangement which they know or suspect facilitates the acquisition, retention, use or control of criminal property by or on behalf of another person (Section 328 of POCA); or
• Acquire, use or possess criminal property for which adequate consideration was not provided.

Any of these offences is punishable by up to 14 years’ imprisonment and/or an unlimited fine.

2.2.2 None of these offences is committed if:

• The persons involved did not know or suspect that they were dealing with the proceeds of crime; or

• A report of the suspicious activity is made promptly to:
  o A Money Laundering Reporting Officer (MLRO) (i.e. an internal Suspicious Activity Report (SAR)); or o The National Crime Agency (NCA) under the provisions of Section 338 of POCA (as an external SAR) and the SAR is made before the offence takes place so that the necessary consent to proceed (referred to as a defence against money laundering by the NCA) is obtained beforehand; or

• There is a reasonable excuse for not reporting (this is likely to be defined narrowly, in terms of personal safety or security, and so very rare); or

• The conduct which gave rise to the criminal property is, (a) reasonably believed to have happened in a location where it was legal (i.e., outside the UK), and (b) would have carried a maximum sentence of less than 12 months had it occurred in the UK. The requirements of this overseas conduct exception are complex, onerous and stringent; specialist legal advice may be needed.

2.2.3 The following offences apply only within the regulated sector:

• Failure to report (Section 330 of POCA) a suspicion of money laundering (see above regarding ‘reasonable excuse’). Remember: there is no de minimis threshold value for reporting.

• Disclosing that a suspicious activity report (SAR) has been made, or is being contemplated, in a way that is likely to prejudice any subsequent investigation. For further information on these so-called ‘tipping off’ offences (Section 333 of POCA) see Section six of this guidance.

2.2.4 There are equivalent offences under the Terrorism Act 2000 (TA 2000) with no overseas conduct exemption or de minimis threshold amount.

2.2.5 Summaries of the relevant Sections of POCA can be found in APPENDIX A.
3 RESPONSIBILITY & OVERSIGHT

- What are the responsibilities of a business?
- How should sole practitioners implement these requirements?
- What are the responsibilities of senior management/MLRO?
- How might the MLRO role be split?
- What policies, procedures and controls are required?

3.1 What are the responsibilities of a business?

3.1.1 For businesses providing defined services, the 2017 Regulations require anti-money laundering systems and controls that meet the requirements of the UK anti-money laundering regime. The 2017 Regulations impose a duty to ensure that relevant employees (see Section eight of this guidance) are kept aware of these systems and controls and are trained to apply them properly. Businesses are explicitly required to:

- Monitor and manage their own compliance with the 2017 Regulations; and
- Make sure they are always familiar with the requirements of the 2017 Regulations to ensure continuing compliance.

3.1.2 If a business fails to meet its obligations under the 2017 Regulations, civil penalties or criminal sanctions can be imposed on the business and any individuals deemed responsible. This could include anyone in a senior position who neglected their own responsibilities or agreed to something that resulted in the compliance failure.

3.1.3 The primary money laundering offences defined under POCA (see 2.2 of this guidance) can be committed by anyone inside or outside the regulated sector but POCA imposes specific provisions on the regulated sector.

3.1.4 Businesses must have systems and controls capable of: assessing the risk associated with a client; performing CDD; monitoring existing clients; keeping appropriate records; and enabling staff to make an internal SAR (i.e. to their MLRO).

3.1.5 Relevant employees must be trained appropriately so that they understand both their own personal AML obligations and the business-wide systems and controls that have been developed to prevent MLTF.

3.1.6 The AML skills, knowledge, expertise, conduct and integrity of relevant employees must be assessed.

3.1.7 Effective internal risk management systems and controls must be established and the relevant senior management responsibilities clearly defined.

3.2 How should sole practitioners implement these requirements?

3.2.1 Because it would not be appropriate to the size and nature of the business, a sole practitioner who has no relevant employees need not:

- appoint a board member to be responsible for the business’ compliance with the UK anti-money laundering regime, as the sole practitioner will be held responsible;
- appoint a nominated officer because the sole practitioner will be responsible for submitting external reports to the NCA;
- establish an independent audit function for AML policies, controls and procedures.

3.3 What are the responsibilities of Senior Management/MLRO?
The 2017 Regulations define senior management as: an officer or employee of the business with sufficient knowledge of the business’ MLTF risk exposure, and with sufficient authority, to take decisions affecting its risk exposure.

3.3.2 The 2017 Regulations require that the approval of Senior Management must be obtained:

- for the policies, controls and procedures adopted by the business. (Regulation 19(2)(b));
- before entering into or continuing a business relationship with a Politically Exposed Person (PEP), a family member of a PEP or a known close associate of a PEP (Regulation 35(5)(a)).

3.3.3 Members of senior management undertaking such responsibilities should receive Continuing Professional Development (CPD) appropriate to their role.

3.3.4 Regulation 21(1)(a) of the 2017 Regulations requires that, where appropriate to the size and nature of the business, the business appoints a board member or member of senior management who must be responsible for the business’ compliance with the UK anti-money laundering regime. The role requires the individual to have:

- an understanding of the business, its service lines and its clients;
- sufficient seniority to direct the activities of all members of staff (including senior members of staff);
- the authority to ensure the business’ compliance with the regime;
- the time, capacity and resources to fulfil the role.

3.3.5 Regulation 21(3) of the 2017 Regulations requires a business to appoint a nominated officer, who must be responsible for receiving internal SARs and making external SARs to the NCA (as the UK’s FIU). The person appointed must have:

- sufficient seniority to enforce their decisions;
- the authority to make external reports to the NCA without reference to another person;
- the time, capacity and resources to review internal SARs and make external SARs in a timely manner.

3.3.6 Within 14 days of the appointment of either the responsible board member/senior management and/or the nominated officer, the business’ anti-money laundering supervisory authority must be informed of the identity of the individual(s).

3.3.7 Depending on the size, complexity and structure of a business, these two roles may be combined in a single individual provided that person has sufficient seniority, authority, governance responsibility, time, capacity and resources to do both roles properly. This guidance primarily describes the situation in which one individual fulfils the combined role, referred to in this guidance as the MLRO, with alternative arrangements covered in 3.4 of this guidance. The role of the MLRO is not defined in legislation but has traditionally included responsibility for internal controls and risk management around MLTF, in accordance with sectoral guidance. Businesses with an MLRO should periodically review the MLRO’s brief to ensure that:

- it reflects current law, regulation, guidance, best practice and the experience of the business in relation to the effective management of MLTF risk; and
• the MLRO has the seniority, authority, governance responsibility, time, capacity and resources to fulfil the brief.

3.3.8 The business should ensure that there are sufficient resources to undertake the work associated with the MLRO’s role. This should cover normal working, planned and unplanned absences and seasonal or other peaks in work. Arrangements may include appointing deputies and delegates. When deciding upon the number and location of deputies and delegates, the business should have regard to the size and complexity of the business’ service lines and locations. Particular service lines or locations may benefit from a deputy or delegate with specialised knowledge or proximity. Where there are deputies, delegates or both (or when elements of business’ AML policies, controls and procedures are outsourced), the MLRO retains ultimate responsibility for the business’ compliance with the UK anti-money laundering regime.

3.3.9 All MLROs, deputies and delegates should undertake CPD appropriate to their roles.

3.3.10 The MLRO should:

• have oversight of, and be involved in, MLTF risk assessments;
• take reasonable steps to access any relevant information about the business;
• obtain and use national and international findings to inform their performance of their role;
• create and maintain the business’ risk based approach to preventing MLTF;
• support and coordinate management’s focus on MLTF risks in each individual business area. This involves developing and implementing systems, controls, policies and procedures that are appropriate to each business area;
• take reasonable steps to ensure the creation and maintenance of MLTF documentation;
• develop Customer Due Diligence (CDD) policies and procedures;
• ensure the creation of the systems and controls needed to enable staff to make internal SARs in compliance with POCA;
• receive internal SARs and make external SARs to the NCA;
• take remedial action where controls are ineffective;
• draw attention to the areas in which systems and controls are effective and where improvements could be made;
• take reasonable steps to establish and maintain adequate arrangements for awareness and training;
• receive the findings of relevant audits and compliance reviews (both internal and external) and communicate these to the board (or equivalent managing body).
• report to the board (or equivalent managing body) at least annually, providing an assessment of the operations and effectiveness of the business’ AML systems and controls. This should take the form of a written report. These written reports should be supplemented with regular ad hoc meetings or comprehensive management information to keep senior management engaged with AML compliance and up-to-date with relevant national and international developments in AML, including new areas of risk and regulatory practice. The board (or equivalent managing body) should be able to demonstrate that it has given proper consideration to the reports and ad hoc briefings provided by the MLRO and then take appropriate action to remedy any AML deficiencies highlighted.

3.4 How might the MLRO role be split?

3.4.1 Where the MLRO role as described above is split between two or more individuals, the allocation of the duties should be clear to the individuals assigned the duties, all relevant employees and the business’ anti-money laundering supervisory authority.

3.4.2 Businesses may use their discretion as to how to assign duties between two or more individuals, depending on the size, complexity and structure of their business (subject to the basic legal requirements described in this guidance).

3.4.3 The matters listed in 3.3.10 of this guidance should be allocated to these individuals or others with the appropriate skills, knowledge and expertise. Regardless of the allocation of these duties, the individual identified in 3.3.4 of this guidance is ultimately responsible for the business’ compliance with the UK anti-money laundering regime, including the actions of the nominated officer.

3.5 What policies, procedures and controls are required?

3.5.1 The 2017 Regulations place certain requirements on businesses regarding CDD (Chapter two) and ‘record keeping, procedures and training’ (Chapter three). The following topics, all of which form part of the MLTF framework, need to be considered:

• risk based approach, risk assessment and management;
• CDD;
• record keeping;
• internal control;
• ongoing monitoring;
• reporting procedures;
• compliance management;
• communication.

3.5.2 The 2017 Regulations provide different amounts of detail about the policies and procedures required in each area. Businesses must implement and document policies, controls and procedures that are proportionate to the size and nature of the business. These should be subject to regular review and update, and a written record of this exercise maintained.
3.5.3 Businesses with overseas subsidiaries or branches that are carrying out any of the activities listed in 1.2.1 of this guidance must establish group wide policies and procedures equivalent to those in the UK. If the law of the overseas territory does not permit this then the business must inform its anti-money laundering supervisory authority and implement additional risk based procedures. Steps taken to communicate policies, controls and procedures to the group must also be recorded.

Risk assessment and management

3.5.4 Every business must have appropriate policies and procedures for assessing and managing MLTF risks. To focus resources on the areas of greatest risk, a risk based approach should be adopted. It is the ultimate responsibility of the board member or member of senior management responsible for compliance to identify the risks and then develop risk based procedures for taking on new clients. A risk assessment should be conducted at least annually, but with new and changing risks considered as and when they are identified. Resources like the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) mutual evaluations and Transparency International’s corruption perception index can be useful when determining the MLTF risk faced by a given business. Information from the business’ anti-money laundering supervisory authority must be taken into account. Further information on the risk based approach, types and categories of risk can be found in Section four of this guidance.

Customer Due Diligence (CDD)

3.5.5 Responsibility for developing CDD policies and procedures rests with the MLRO. These procedures should ensure that relevant employees are able to make informed decisions about whether or not to establish a business relationship or undertake an occasional transaction, in the light of the MLTF risks associated with the client and transaction. To ensure that the correct procedures are being followed, relevant employees must be made aware of their obligations under the 2017 Regulations and given appropriate training.

3.5.6 Many businesses already have procedures to help them avoid conflicts of interest and ensure they comply with professional requirements for independence. The requirements of the 2017 Regulations can either be integrated into these procedures, to form a consolidated approach to taking on a new client, or addressed separately. For more on CDD see Section five of this guidance.

Reporting

3.5.7 Under POCA the reporting of knowledge or suspicion of money laundering is a legal requirement. It is the responsibility of the MLRO to develop and implement internal policies, procedures and systems that are able to satisfy the POCA reporting requirements. Those policies must set out clearly, (a) what is expected of an individual who becomes aware of, or suspects, money laundering, and (b) how they report their concerns to the MLRO. All relevant employees must be trained in these procedures.

More information on reporting suspicious activity can be found in Section six of this guidance.
Record keeping

3.5.8 All records created as part of the CDD process, including any non-engagement documents relating to the client relationship and ongoing monitoring of it, must be retained for five years after the relationship ends. All records related to an occasional transaction must be retained for five years after the transaction is completed. A disengagement letter could provide documentary evidence that a business relationship has terminated, as could other forms of communication such as an unambiguous email making it clear that the business does not wish to engage or is ceasing to act.

3.5.9 Although no comparable retention period is specified for information and communications relating to internal and external SARs, a business may wish to retain these securely for five years as well.

3.5.10 Senior management must ensure that the relevant employees are made aware of these retention policies and that they remain alert to the importance of following them. There is more information on record keeping in Section seven of this guidance.

Training and awareness

3.5.11 The 2017 Regulations require all relevant employees to be made aware of the law relating to MLTF and data protection and given regular training in how to recognise and deal with suspicious activity which may be related to MLTF.

The MLRO should establish training capable of ensuring that relevant employees:

- Are aware of their legal and regulatory duties;
- Understand how to put those requirements into practice in their roles; and
- Are continuously updated about changes in, (a) the business’ AML policies, systems and controls, and (b) the MLTF risks faced.

3.5.12 A formal training plan can help make sure that relevant employees receive the right training to enable them to comply with their AML obligations.

3.5.13 Training should be tailored to suit the particular role of the individual.

3.5.14 A business that fails to provide training for relevant employees could be in breach of the regulations and at risk of prosecution. It would also risk failing to comply with Section 338 of POCA, which requires Businesses in the regulated sector to disclose any suspicions of money laundering. Although Section 330 of POCA could provide a ‘reasonable excuse’ defence against a failure to disclose for the individual, the regulations are still likely to have been breached by the business because adequate training was not provided. For further information on training and awareness refer to Section eight of this guidance.
Employee screening

3.5.15 Businesses should consider the skills, knowledge, expertise, conduct and integrity of all relevant employees both before, and during the course of, their appointment, proportionate to their role in the business and the MLTF risks they are likely to encounter. An employee is relevant if his or her work is relevant to compliance with the 2017 Regulations or is otherwise capable of contributing to the business’ identification, mitigation, prevention or detection of MLTF. Most businesses may already undertake such an assessment as part of their recruitment, appraisal, training, independence, fit and proper and compliance procedures. However, it is important that businesses have a mechanism for evidencing MLTF knowledge within such procedures for example, a test for which the results are recorded can evidence knowledge and expertise. Similarly, regular recorded ethics training can be useful in assessing integrity.

Monitoring policies and procedures

3.5.16 The MLRO and appropriate senior management should together monitor the effectiveness of policies, procedures and processes so that improvements can be made when inefficiencies are found. Risks should be monitored and any changes must be reflected in changes to policies and procedures; keeping them up-to-date, in line with the risk assessment of the business. For more information, see Section four of this guidance.

3.5.17 In their efforts to improve AML policies, controls and procedures, and better understand where problems can arise, senior management should encourage relevant employees to provide feedback. When changes are made to policies, procedures or processes these should be properly communicated to relevant employees and supported by appropriate training where necessary.

3.5.18 Businesses must introduce a system of regular, independent reviews to understand the adequacy and effectiveness of the MLTF systems and any weaknesses identified. Independent does not necessarily mean external, as some businesses will have internal functions (typically audit, compliance or quality functions) that can carry out the reviews. Any recommendations for improvement should be monitored. Existing monitoring programmes and their frequency can be extending to include AML. The reviews should be proportionate to the size and nature of the business. A sole practitioner with no relevant employees need not implement regular, independent reviews unless required by their UK AML supervisory authority.

3.5.19 As part of their improvement efforts the senior manager responsible for compliance and the MLRO should monitor publicly-available information on best practice in dealing with MLTF risks. For example, thematic reviews by regulators can be useful ways to improve understanding of good and poor practice, while reports on particular enforcement actions can illuminate common areas of weakness in AML policies, controls and procedures.
4 RISK BASED APPROACH

- What is the role of the risk based approach?
- What is the role of senior management?
- How should the risk analysis be designed?
- What is the risk profile of the business?
- How should procedures take account of the?
- What are the different types of risk?
- How important is documentation?

4.1 What is the role of the risk based approach?

4.1.1 The risk based approach is fundamental to satisfying the FATF recommendations, the EU directive and the overall UK MLTF regime. It requires governments, supervisors and Businesses alike to analyse the MLTF risks they face and make proportionate responses to them. It is the foundation of any business’ AML policies, controls and procedures, particularly its CDD and staff training procedures.

4.1.2 The risk based approach recognises that the risks posed by MLTF financing activity will not be the same in every case and so it allows the business to tailor its response in proportion to its perceptions of risk. The risk based approach requires evidence-based decision-making to better target risks. No procedure will ever detect and prevent all MLTF, but a realistic analysis of actual risks enables a business to concentrate the greatest resources on the greatest threats.

4.1.3 The risk based approach does not exempt low risk clients, services and situations from CDD, however the appropriate level of CDD is likely to be less onerous than for those thought to present a higher level of risk.

4.1.4 This section provides guidance on the analyses the business will need to perform to properly underpin a risk based approach. Guidance on applying the risk based approach to particular AML procedures and controls can be found in the relevant sections of this guidance dedicated to those procedures.

4.2 What is the role of senior management?

4.2.1 Senior management is responsible for managing all of the risks faced by the business, including MLTF risks. Senior managers should ensure that MLTF risks are analysed, and their nature and severity identified and assessed, in order so as to produce a risk profile. Senior management should then act to mitigate those risks in proportion to the severity of the threats they pose.

4.2.2 Where a risk is identified, the business must design and implement appropriate procedures to manage it. The reasons for believing these procedures to be appropriate should be supported by evidence, documented and systems created to monitor effectiveness. A business’ risk based approach should evolve in response to the findings of the systems monitoring the effectiveness of the AML policies, controls and procedures.

4.2.3 The risk analysis can be conducted by the MLRO, but must be approved by senior management including the senior manager responsible for compliance (if a different person to the MLRO). This is likely to include formal ratification of the outcomes, including the resulting policies and procedures, but may also include close senior management involvement in some or all of the analysis itself.
4.2.4 The risk profile and operating environment of any business changes over time. The risk analysis must be refreshed regularly by periodic reviews, the frequency of which should reflect the MLTF risks faced and the stability or otherwise of the business environment. In addition, whenever senior management sees that events have affected MLTF risks, the risk analysis should also be refreshed by an event-driven review. A fresh analysis may require AML policies, controls and procedures to be amended, with consequential impacts upon, for example, the training programs for relevant employees.

4.3 How should a risk analysis be designed?

4.3.1 One possible first step is to consider the MLTF risks faced by each different part of the business. The business may already have general risk analysis processes, and these could form the basis of its MLTF risk analysis.

4.3.2 When designing an analysis process the business should look not only at itself but at its clients and markets as well. Consider factors that lower risks as well as those that increase them; a client subject to an effective AML regime poses a lower risk than one not. Businesses should take into account the findings of the most recent UK National Risk Assessment, together with any guidance issued by the relevant anti-money laundering supervisory authority.

4.3.3 Total MLTF risks include the possibility that the business might:

- Be used to launder money (e.g. by holding criminal proceeds in a client money account or by becoming involved in an arrangement that disguises the beneficial ownership of criminal proceeds);
- Be used to facilitate MLTF by another person (e.g. by creating a corporate vehicle to be used for money laundering or by introducing a money launderer to another regulated entity);
- Suffer consequential legal, regulatory or reputational damage because a client (or one or more of its associates) is involved in money laundering.

4.3.4 Risks should be grouped into categories, such as ‘client’, ‘service’ and ‘geography’. Some risks will not easily fit under any one heading but that should not prevent them from being considered properly. Nor should a business judge overall risk simply by looking at individual risks in isolation. When two threats are combined they can produce a total risk greater than the sum of the parts. A particular industry and a particular country may each be thought to pose only a moderate risk. But when they are brought together, perhaps by a particular client or transaction, then the combined risk could possibly be high. Businesses must not take a ‘tick-box’ approach to assessing MLTF risk in relation to any individual client but must, instead, take reasonable steps to assess all information relevant to its consideration of the risk.

4.4 What is the risk profile of the business?

4.4.1 A business with a relatively simple client base and a limited portfolio of services may have a simple risk profile. In which case, a single set of AML policies, controls and procedures may suffice right across its operations. On the other hand, many Businesses will find that their risk analysis reveals quite different MLTF risks in different aspects of the business. Accountancy services, for example, may face significantly different risks to insolvency, bankruptcy and recovery services. A risk analysis allows resources to be targeted, and procedures tailored, to address those differences properly.

4.4.2 When a business decides to have different procedures in different parts of its operations, it should consider how to deal with clients whose needs straddle departments or functions, such as:
• A new client who is to be served by two or more parts of the business with different AML policies, controls and procedures;

• An existing client who is to receive new services from a part of the business with its own distinct AML policies, controls and procedures.

4.4.3 The risk based approach can also take into account the business’ experience and knowledge of different commercial environments. If, for example, it has no experience of a particular country, it could treat it as a normal or high risk even though other Businesses might consider it low risk. Similarly, if it expects to deal with only UK individuals and entities, it may treat as high risk any client associated with a non-UK country.

4.5 How should procedures take account of the risk based approach?

4.5.1 Before establishing a client relationship or accepting an engagement a business must have controls in place to address the risks arising from it. The risk profile of the business should show where particular risks are likely to arise, and so where certain procedures will be needed to tackle them.

4.5.2 Risk based approach procedures should be easy to understand and easy to use for all relevant employees who will need them. Sufficient flexibility should be built in to allow the procedures to identify, and adapt to, unusual situations.

4.5.3 The nature and extent of AML policies, controls and procedures depend on:

• The nature, scale, complexity and diversity of the business;

• The geographical spread of client operations, including any local AML regimes that apply; and

• The extent to which operations are linked to other organisations (such as networking businesses or agencies).

4.5.4 Businesses should have different client risk categories such as: low, normal, and high. The procedures used for each category should be suitable for the risks typically found in that category. For example, if it is normal for a business to deal with clients from a high risk country, the business’ procedures for what they regard as normal clients must be designed to address the risks associated with the high risk country. Some low and high risk indicators can be found in APPENDIX E.

4.5.5 Regardless of the risk categorisation, businesses will still be expected to undertake monitoring of the client relationship. Such monitoring must be done on a risk based approach, with levels of monitoring varying depending on the MLTF risk associated with individual clients.

4.5.6 Taking into account key risk categories, a business may be able to draw up a simple matrix in order to determine a client’s risk profile. Such risk categories may include a client’s legal form, the country in which the client is established or incorporated, and the industry sector in which the client operates. In addition, businesses should also consider the nature of the service being offered to a client and the channels through which the services/transactions are being delivered.
4.5.7 Elevated risks could be mitigated by:
  - Conducting enhanced levels of due diligence – i.e., increasing the level of CDD that is gathered.
  - Carrying out periodic CDD reviews on a more frequent basis.
  - Putting additional controls around particular service offerings or client.

4.6 What is client risk?

4.6.1 A business should consider the following question, “Does the client or its beneficial owners have attributes known to be frequently used by money launderers or terrorist financiers?”

4.6.2 Client risk is the overall MLTF risk posed by a client based on the key risk categories, as determined by a business.

4.6.3 The client’s risk profile may also inform the extent of the checks that need to be performed on other associated parties, such as the client’s beneficial owners.

4.6.4 Undue client secrecy and unnecessarily complex ownership structures can both point to heightened risk because company structures that disguise ownership and control are particularly attractive to people involved in MLTF.

4.6.5 In cases where a client (an individual) or beneficial owner of a client is identified as a PEP, an enhanced level of due diligence must be performed on the PEP. Further details on the approach to be taken in such circumstances are set out in 5.3.11 - 5.3.22 of this guidance.

4.7 What is service risk?

4.7.1 A business should consider the following question “Do any of our products or services have attributes known to be used by money launderers or terrorist financiers?”

4.7.2 Service risk is the perceived risk that certain products or services present an increased level of vulnerability in being used for MLTF purposes.

4.7.3 Businesses should consider carrying out additional checks when providing a product or service that has an increased level of MLTF vulnerability.

4.7.4 Services and products in which there is a serious risk that the business itself could commit a money laundering offence should also be treated as higher risk. For example, wherever the business may commit an offence under Section 327 – 329 of POCA. (See APPENDIX A.)

4.7.5 Before a business begins to offer a service significantly different from its existing range of products or services, it should assess the associated MLTF risks and respond appropriately to any new or increased risks.

4.8 What is geographic risk?

4.8.1 A business should consider the following question “Are our clients established in countries that are known to be used by money launderers or terrorist financiers?”

4.8.2 Geographic risk is the increased level of risk that a country poses in respect of MLTF.

4.8.3 When determining geographic risk, factors to consider may include the perceived level of corruption, criminal activity, and the effectiveness of MLTF controls within the country.

4.8.4 Businesses should make use of publicly available information when assessing the levels of MLTF of a particular country, e.g. information published by civil society organisations such as Transparency International and public assessments of the MLTF framework of individual countries (such as FATF mutual evaluations).

4.8.5 Although some countries may carry a higher level of MLTF risk, those businesses that have extensive experience within a given country may reach a geographical risk classification that differs to those that only have a limited exposure.

4.9 What is sector risk?

4.9.1 A business should consider the following question “Do our clients have substantial operations in sectors that are favoured by money launderers or terrorist financiers?”

4.9.2 Sector risks are the risks associated with certain sectors that are more likely to be exposed to increased levels of MLTF.

4.9.3 Businesses should consider the sectors in which their client has significant operations, and take this into account when determining a client’s risk profile. When considering what constitutes a high risk sector, Businesses should take into account the findings of the most recent UK National Risk Assessment, together with any guidance issued by the relevant anti-money laundering supervisory authority.

4.10 What is delivery channel risk?

4.10.1 A business should consider the following question “Does the fact that I am not dealing with the client face to face pose a greater MLTF risk?”

4.10.2 Certain delivery channels can increase the MLTF risk, because they can make it more difficult to determine the identity and credibility of a client, both at the start of a business relationship and during its course.

4.10.3 For example, delivery channel risk could be increased where services/products are provided to clients who have not been met face-to-face, or where a business relationship with a client is conducted through an intermediary.

4.10.4 Businesses should consider the risks posed by a given delivery channel when determining the risk profile of a client, and whether an increased level of CDD needs to be performed.

4.11 Why is documentation important?

4.11.1 Businesses must be able to demonstrate to their anti-money laundering supervisory authority how they assess and seek to mitigate MLTF risks. This assessment must be documented, and made available to the anti-money laundering supervisory authority on request. The documentation should demonstrate how the risk assessment informs their policies and procedures.
5 CUSTOMER DUE DILIGENCE (CDD)

- What is the purpose of CDD?
- When should CDD be carried out?
- How should CDD be applied?
- What happens if CDD cannot be performed?

5.1 What is the purpose of CDD?

5.1.1 Criminals often seek to mask their true identity by using complex and opaque ownership structures. The purpose of CDD is to know and understand a client’s identity and business activities so that any MLTF risks can be properly managed. Effective CDD is, therefore, a key part of AML defences. By knowing the identity of a client, including who owns and controls it, a business not only fulfils its legal and regulatory requirements it equips itself to make informed decisions about the client’s standing and acceptability.

5.1.2 CDD also helps a business to construct a better understanding of the client’s typical business activities. By understanding what is normal practice it is easier to detect abnormal events, which, in turn, may point to MLTF activity.

CDD principles

5.1.3 The 2017 Regulations outline the required components of good CDD. Businesses must apply them, (a) at the start of a new business relationship (including a company formation), (b) at appropriate points during the lifetime of the relationship and (c) when an occasional transaction is to be undertaken. The required components are:

- Identifying the client (i.e., knowing who the client is) and then verifying their identity (i.e., demonstrating that they are who they claim to be) by obtaining documents or other information from independent and reliable sources;

- Identifying beneficial owner(s) so that the ownership and control structure can be understood and the identities of any individuals who are the owners or controllers can be known and, on a risk sensitive basis, reasonable measures should be taken to verify their identity; and

- Gathering information on the intended purpose and nature of the business relationship.

5.1.4 When determining the degree of CDD to apply, the business must adopt a risk based approach, taking into account the type of client, business relationship, product or transaction, and ensuring that the appropriate emphasis is given to those areas that pose a higher level of risk (see Section four of this guidance). For this reason it is important that risks are assessed at the outset of a business relationship so that a proportionate degree of CDD can be brought to bear.

5.1.5 Where the work to be performed falls within the scope of defined services, the business must ensure that CDD is applied to new and existing clients alike. For existing clients, CDD information gathered previously should be reviewed and updated where it is necessary, timely and risk-appropriate to do so.

5.1.6 The 2017 Regulations stipulate that CDD must also be performed where there is either a suspicion of MLTF, or any doubts about the reliability of the identity information, or documents obtained previously for verification purposes.
5.1.7 Where there is such knowledge or suspicion the business needs to consider not only whether the existing CDD information is sufficient and up-to-date, but also whether an external SAR should be made to the NCA.

5.1.8 While the 2017 Regulations prescribe the level of CDD that should be applied in certain situations (i.e. simplified or enhanced – for more on this see 5.3 of this guidance), they do not describe how to do this on a risk-sensitive basis. Nonetheless, a business is expected to be able to demonstrate to its anti-money laundering supervisory authority that the measures it applied were appropriate in accordance with its own risk assessment. Section four of this guidance outlines broadly the key areas to be considered when developing a risk-based approach including (amongst other factors) the purpose, regularity and duration of the business relationship.

Stages of CDD

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Identification (Information gathering)</th>
<th>Risk assessment</th>
<th>Verification (Evidence gathering)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Who is the client?</td>
<td>• Client risk</td>
<td>• What documents or other information do you need to demonstrate what you have been told is true?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Who owns/controls them?</td>
<td>• Service risk</td>
<td>• What steps do you need to take or what information do you need to obtain to mitigate any specific risks that you have identified?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• What do they do?</td>
<td>• Geographic risk</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• What is their source of funds?</td>
<td>• Sector risk</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Can you describe their activities?</td>
<td>• Delivery channel risk</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• What will you be doing for them?</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• What is its legal structure?</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

5.1.9 The arrows in the diagram above represent feedback loops by which an initial risk assessment or verification may highlight a need for more information to be gathered or a fresh risk assessment performed.

5.1.10 The identification phase requires the gathering of information about a client’s identity and the purpose of the intended business relationship. Appropriate identification information for an individual would include full name, date of birth and residential address. This can be collected from a range of sources, including the client. In the case of corporates and other organisations, identification also extends to establishing the identity of anyone who ultimately owns or controls the client. These people are the Beneficial Owners (BOs), and further detail on how to deal with them can be found in 5.1.14 of this guidance.

5.1.11 The next stage of CDD is risk assessment. This should be performed in accordance with the risk-based approach guidance contained in Section four of this guidance, and must reflect the purpose, regularity and duration of the business relationship, as well as the size of transactions to be undertaken by the client and the business’ own risk assessment. An initial risk assessment is based on the information gathered during stage one (identification), but this may prompt the gathering of additional information as indicated by the left-hand feedback loop. The right-hand feedback loop shows that additional risk assessment may be required in the light of stage three (verification).

5.1.12 Once an initial risk assessment has been carried out, evidence is required to verify the identity information gathered during the first stage. This is called client verification.
Verification involves validating (with an independent, authoritative source), that the identity is genuine and belongs to the claimed individual or entity. For an individual, verification may require sight of a passport (with a photocopy taken). For corporates and others, in addition to the client itself, reasonable verification measures for any individual beneficial owners (BOs) must also be considered on a risk sensitive basis.

5.1.13 Further guidance on the type of information that should be gathered and the documents that can be used to verify it, can be found in 5.3.35 of this guidance.

Beneficial ownership

Definition

5.1.14 A beneficial owner can only be a natural person i.e., an individual (other than in the case of a trust, see below).

5.1.15 Regulations 5 and 6 of the 2017 Regulations defines the meaning of ‘beneficial owner’ for a range of different client types. The table below gives a summary of how beneficial ownership could be established for a variety of entities:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Client type</th>
<th>Voting Rights</th>
<th>Shares</th>
<th>Capital or profits</th>
<th>Other means of ownership/control</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Companies whose securities are listed on a EEA regulated investment market or equivalent</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>No requirement to establish beneficial ownership</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bodies corporate (including LLPs and LPs)</td>
<td>&gt;25%</td>
<td>&gt;25%</td>
<td></td>
<td>Any individual who exercises ultimate control over the management of the body corporate, or who controls the body corporate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Partnerships other than LLPs and LPs</td>
<td>entitled to or controls &gt;25%</td>
<td>entitled to or controls &gt;25%</td>
<td></td>
<td>Any individual who exercises ultimate control over the partnership management (or in the case of a Scottish partnership, significant influence)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trusts</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>The beneficiaries (or where some/all have not yet been determined, the class of persons in whose main interest the trust is set up or operates) &lt;br&gt;The settlor and trustee(s) &lt;br&gt;Any other individual who has control over the trust (e.g., a protector or trust controller).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Client type</td>
<td>Voting Rights</td>
<td>Shares</td>
<td>Capital or profits</td>
<td>Other means of ownership/control</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-----------------------------</td>
<td>---------------</td>
<td>--------</td>
<td>--------------------</td>
<td>----------------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Other legal entities</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Any individual who benefits from the property of the entity where no individual beneficiaries are identified, the class of persons in whose main interest the entity or arrangement was set up or operates, any individual who exercises control over the entity/arrangement.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Estates of deceased individuals</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>The executor or administrator of the estate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>All other cases</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>The individual who ultimately owns or controls the client, or on whose behalf a transaction is being conducted the senior individual responsible for management (noting the reasons why the business was unable to obtain adequate information on the beneficial owner, and considering whether it may be appropriate to cease acting, or file a SAR).</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

5.1.16 Businesses, in accordance with their legal obligations, need to be diligent in their enquiries about beneficial ownership, taking into account that the information they need may not always be readily available from public sources. A flexible approach to information gathering will be needed as it will often involve direct enquiries with clients and their advisers as well as searches of public records in the UK and overseas. There may be situations in which someone is considered to be the beneficial owner by virtue of control even though their ownership share is less than 25%.

Determining BOs in respect of complex structures

5.1.17 In many situations determining beneficial ownership is a straightforward matter. Cases in which the client is part of a complex structure will need to be looked at more closely. The diagrams below illustrate types of structures, including indirect ownership and aggregation, which should be taken into account when determining beneficial ownership.
EXAMPLE 1

The client is Company A Ltd, a private company. Unless persons F or G exercise the relevant control through other means (such as through 25% voting rights or other means of control) and based on a 25% ownership threshold, the BOs are person D and person E.

In determining the beneficial owner position, we would need to understand the ownership of Companies B & C (also private companies), but they themselves do not meet the definition of a BO as they are not natural persons.

Person D: is a beneficial owner due to their indirect shareholding of 30% via Company B.

Person E: is a beneficial owner due to their indirect shareholding of 30% via Company B and C.

Persons F & G are not beneficial owners as they only own 20% each via Company C.
Our client is Company A Ltd, a private company. Unless E or F exercise the relevant control through other means (such as through 25% voting rights or other means of control) and based on a 25% threshold, the BOs are person H and person J.

In determining the beneficial owner position, we would need to understand the structure of Company C, Partnership D, Pension Fund E, Company F and G Banking Corp but they themselves do not meet the definition of a BO as they are not natural persons.

Persons H & J: are beneficial owners based on a 25% threshold due to their indirect shareholding of 33% each via Partnership D.

Whilst not beneficial owners in their own right, Pension Fund E and Company F present avenues of ownership and control which should be considered further. Pension Fund E has a 33% ownership interest in Company A. Company F, as General Partner, controls the operations of Partnership D (which owns 100% of Company A). Company F is ultimately owned by G Banking Corp. In some situations, pension schemes and banks may qualify for Simplified Due Diligence (SDD), in which case consideration will stop at the point that we can confirm they are eligible for such treatment. Depending on the risk assessment we may need to further investigate the ownership and control structure to ensure there are no further BOs.
Example 3

The client (Company A Ltd) is a body corporate, therefore:

- Its BOs are the natural persons who: (a) exercise ultimate control over its management; (b) own or control more than 25% of its voting rights; (c) own or control more than 25% of its shares; or (d) otherwise controls it (for example through the right to appoint or remove a majority of the directors). There is no need to consider who benefits from dividends or capital distributions.

- There is no need to use the BO rules related to other types of client, such as trusts.

In our case, all of the shares in Company A have equal voting rights. 80% of them are owned by Discretionary Trust E, which allows Discretionary trust E to control the activities of Company A. The remaining shares are owned by employees of Company A, none of whom have any connection to anyone else in the ownership and control structure.

Discretionary trust E is not a natural person, so it cannot be a BO.

The activities of Discretionary trust E are controlled by its trustees (M). Thus, each trustee is a BO of Company A.

In our case the trust’s protector (K) acts as a check on the powers of the trustees and is also responsible for appointing new trustees. They are therefore regarded as having significant influence and control over E. Protector K is a BO of Company A.

In our case the settlor (L) has no involvement following settlement of assets into the trust, nor do they exercise significant influence or control over the trustees or the... protector. L has no other connection to A. L is not a BO of Company A, since they will not be exercising significant influence or control over E.

The employee-shareholders do not have enough votes, acting either individually or together, to control Company A, none of them is a BO of Company A.

Although the trustees and the protector must act in the interest of the beneficiaries, they (N) have no authority over the trustees or protector. Thus, the beneficiaries will not be BOs of Company A, unless they exercise significant influence or control over E or A.

Notes:

- There may be situations where it is appropriate to know the identity of person L, for example to understand the source of Company A’s capital. The MLRO should make the decision to seek such information as a risk-sensitive response to a particular set of circumstances.

- There may be situations where it is appropriate to identify the class of beneficiaries of trust E or even individuals receiving distributions from the trust, for example where distributions from Company A appear excessive it may be appropriate to establish that the beneficiary or beneficiaries require substantial funds. This may occur where a beneficiary is paying for a wedding or for large medical bills. The MLRO should make the decision to seek such information as a risk-sensitive response to a particular set of circumstances.

- If the trust E becomes a client, the settlor and the class of beneficiaries will need to be identified, in line with the rules for a discretionary trust.
5.2 When should CDD be carried out?

When establishing a business relationship

5.2.1 CDD should normally be completed before entering into a business relationship or undertaking an occasional transaction. For guidance on the situation when CDD cannot be performed before the commencement of a business relationship, see 5.4 of this guidance.

5.2.2 A business relationship is defined by the 2017 Regulations (Regulation 4) as:

‘A business, professional or commercial relationship between a relevant (i.e. regulated) person and a customer, which arises out of the business of the relevant person and is expected by the relevant person, at the time when contact is established, to have an element of duration.’

Thus generic advice, provided with no expectation of any client follow-up or continuing relationship (such as generic reports provided free of charge or available for purchase by anyone), is unlikely to constitute a business relationship, although may potentially be an occasional transaction.

5.2.3 Under Regulation 27 (2) of the 2017 Regulations, for a transaction to be ‘occasional’ it must occur outside of a business relationship and have a value more than €15,000. Such a thing is not common in accountancy services, but should it occur then the business must, (a) understand why the client requires the service, (b) consider any other parties involved, and (c) establish whether or not there is any potential for MLTF. If the client returns for another transaction the business should consider whether this establishes an ongoing relationship.

5.2.4 CDD procedures must also be carried out at certain other times, such as when there is a suspicion of MLTF, or where there are doubts about the available identity information, perhaps following a change in ownership/control or through the participation of a PEP (see 5.3.11 of this guidance).

Ongoing monitoring of the client relationship

5.2.5 Established business relationships should be subject to CDD procedures throughout their duration. This ongoing monitoring involves the scrutiny of client activities (including enquiries into sources of funds if necessary) to make sure they are consistent with the business’ knowledge and understanding of the client and its operations, and the associated risks.

Event-driven reviews

5.2.6 Businesses need to make sure that documentation, data and information obtained for CDD purposes is kept up-to-date. Events prompting a CDD information update must include:

- a change in the client’s identity
- a change in beneficial ownership of the client
- a change in the service provided to the client
- information that is inconsistent with the business’ knowledge of the client

An event driven review may also be triggered by:

- the start of a new engagement;
- planning for recurring engagements;
• a previously stalled engagement restarting;
• a significant change to key office holders;
• the participation of a PEP (see 5.3.11 of this guidance)
• a significant change in the client’s business activity (this would include new operations in new countries); and
• there is knowledge, suspicion or cause for concern (for example where you doubt the veracity of information provided). If a SAR has been made, care must also be taken to avoid making any disclosures which could constitute tipping off.

Periodic reviews

5.2.7 Businesses should use routine periodic reviews to update their CDD. The frequency of up-dating should be risk based, making use of the business’ risk assessment covered in Section 4 of this guidance, and reflecting the business’ knowledge of the client and any changes in its circumstances or the services it requires.

Ongoing procedures

5.2.8 The CDD procedures required for either event-driven or periodic reviews may not be the same as when first establishing a new business relationship. Given how much existing information could already be held, ongoing CDD may require the collection of less new information than was required at the very outset.
5.3 How should CDD be applied?

Applying CDD by taking a risk based approach

5.3.1 Regulation 28(12) of the 2017 Regulations requires adequate CDD measures to reflect the business’ risk assessment (Section four of this guidance). This is important not only to ensure that there is good depth of knowledge in higher risk cases but also to avoid disproportionate effort in lower or normal risk cases and to minimise inconvenience for a potential client. No system of checks will ever detect and prevent all MLTF, but a risk-sensitive approach of this kind will provide a realistic assessment of the risks. A non-exhaustive list of risk factors can be found in APPENDIX E.

5.3.2 Extensive information on how to apply CDD in this way is contained in the guidance on risk-sensitive client verification provided by the JMLSG, which considers a wide range of entity types. For information on the more frequently encountered entity types see APPENDIX C.

Simplified due diligence (SDD)

5.3.3 SDD can be applied when a client is low risk, in accordance with the businesses’ risk assessment criteria.

5.3.4 CDD measures are still required but the extent and timing may be adjusted to reflect the assessment of low risk, for example in determining what constitutes reasonable verification measures. Ongoing monitoring for unusual or suspicious transactions is still required.

5.3.5 The business’ internal procedures should set out clearly what constitutes reasonable grounds for a client to qualify for SDD and must take into account at least the risk factors in APPENDIX E and relevant information made available by its anti-money laundering supervisory authority.

5.3.6 In any case, when a client or potential client has been subjected to SDD, and a suspicion of MLTF arises nonetheless, the SDD provisions must be set aside and the appropriate due diligence procedures applied instead (with due regard given to any risk of tipping off).

Enhanced due diligence (EDD)

5.3.7 A risk based approach to CDD will identify situations in which there is a higher risk of MLTF. The regulations specify that ‘enhanced’ due diligence (Regulation 33 of the 2017 Regulations) must be applied in the following situations:

- where there is a high risk of MLTF;
- in any occasional transaction or business relationship with a person established in a high-risk third country;
- if a business has determined that a client or potential client is a PEP, or a family member or known close associate of a PEP;
- in any case where a client has provided false or stolen identification documentation or information on establishing a business relationship;
- in any case where a transaction is complex and unusually large, there is an unusual pattern of transactions which have no apparent economic or legal purpose;
- in any other case which by its nature can present a higher risk of MLTF.

5.3.8 The business’ internal procedures should set out clearly what constitutes reasonable grounds for a client to qualify for EDD and must take into account at least the high risk factors in APPENDIX E.
5.3.9 EDD procedures must include:

- as far as reasonably possible, examining the background and purpose of the engagement; and

- Increasing the degree and nature of monitoring of the business relationship in which the transaction is made to determine whether that transaction or that relationship appear to be suspicious.

5.3.10 EDD measures (as detailed in Regulation 33 (5) of the 2017 Regulations) may also include one or more of the following measures:

- seeking additional independent, reliable sources to verify information, including identity information, provided to the business;

- taking additional measures to understand better the background, ownership and financial situation of the client, and other parties relevant to the engagement;

- taking further steps to be satisfied that the transaction is consistent with the purpose and intended nature of the business relationship;

- Increasing the monitoring of the business relationship, including greater scrutiny of transactions.

Politically exposed person (PEP)

5.3.11 As set out above, the 2017 Regulations specify that PEPs (as well as certain family members and known close associates) must undergo EDD. The nature, and extent of, such EDD measures must vary depending on the extent of any heightened MLTF risk associated with individual PEPs. Businesses must treat PEPs on a case-by-case basis, and apply EDD on the basis of their assessment of the MLTF risk associated with any individual PEPs.

5.3.12 So as to assess this risk, it is important to identify PEPs so that the business can properly consider the risks associated with any engagement involving them. Appropriate risk management systems and procedures to determine whether potential clients (or their beneficial owners) are PEPs, or family members/known close associates of a PEP. These must be based on the risk assessment process detailed in Section four of this guidance, and relevant information provided by the business’ anti-money laundering supervisory authority. Domestic PEPs are included within the definition of PEPs. Businesses should, however, consider factors including the country which has entrusted a PEP with a prominent public function when determining the level of MLTF risk associated with an individual PEP. PEPs entrusted with prominent public functions by countries with characteristics such as low levels of corruption; strong state institutions; and credible anti-money laundering defences are likely to pose less of an MLTF risk than PEPs from higher-risk countries.

5.3.13 An individual identified as a PEP solely because of their public function in the UK must still be treated as a PEP. However if the business is not aware of any factors that would place the individual in a higher risk category, the individual may be categorised as a low risk PEP. Regulation 18 of the 2017 Regulations and the risk factors guidance produced by the European Supervisory Authorities set out factors that might point to potential higher risk. Such factors might also include, for example:

- known involvement in publicised scandals e.g., regarding expenses;

- undeclared business interests;

- the acceptance of inducements to influence policy.
5.3.14 In lower-risk situations a business should apply less onerous EDD requirements (such as, for example, making fewer enquiries of a PEP’s family members or known close associates; and taking less intrusive and less exhaustive steps to establish the sources of wealth/funds of PEPs). Conversely, and in higher-risk situations, Businesses should apply more stringent EDD measures. This represents part of the risk based approach that businesses should take to MLTF compliance, as described more fully elsewhere in this guidance.

5.3.15 Businesses must treat individuals as PEPs for at least 12 months after they cease to hold a prominent public function. This requirement does not apply to family members or known close associates. Family members and known close associates of PEPs should be treated as ordinary clients (and subject only to CDD obligations) from the point that the PEP ceases to discharge a prominent public function. Businesses should only apply EDD measures to PEPs for more than 12 months after they have ceased to hold a prominent public function when the business has determined that they present a higher risk of MLTF.

5.3.16 To establish whether someone is a family member or known close associate of a PEP, businesses are expected to refer only to information that is either in the public domain or already in their possession. The 2017 Regulations provide that the definition of a family member must include the spouses/civil partners of PEPs, the children of PEPs (and their spouse or civil partner) and the parents of PEPs. This is not an exhaustive list – in determining whether other family members should be subject to EDD, businesses should consider the levels of MLTF risk associated with the relevant PEP. In lower-risk situations, a business should not apply EDD to additional family members other than those contained within the definition set out in the 2017 Regulations.

5.3.17 The 2017 Regulations state that only directors, deputy directors and board members (or equivalent) of international organisations should be treated as PEPs. Middle-ranking and junior officials do not fall within the definition of a PEP.

5.3.18 Since the term ‘international organisation’ is not defined by the 2017 Regulations, careful consideration should be given to the type, reputation and constitution of a body before excluding its representatives from EDD. Bodies such as the United Nations and NATO can confidently be considered to fall within the definition. The context of the engagement and role of the PEP in respect of it should also be considered. The regulations are clear that only directors, deputy directors and board members (or equivalent of international organisations) should be treated as PEPs.

5.3.19 Businesses are required to use risk-sensitive measures to help them recognise PEPs. This can be as simple as asking the client themselves or searching the internet for public information relating to the PEP. Businesses likely to provide services regularly to PEPs should consider subscribing to a specialist database. Businesses that use such databases must understand how they are populated and will need to ensure that those flagged by the database fall within the definition of a PEP, family member or known close associate as set out by the 2017 Regulations. During the life of a relationship, and to the extent that it is practical, attempts should be made to keep abreast of developments that could transform an existing client into a PEP.
5.3.20 Businesses wanting to enter into, or continue, a business relationship with a PEP must carry out EDD, which includes:

- senior management approval for the relationship;
- adequate measures to establish sources of wealth and funds; and
- enhanced monitoring of the ongoing relationship.

As set out above, the nature and extent of EDD measures must vary depending on the levels of MLTF risk associated with individual PEPs.

5.3.21 The Financial Conduct Authority (FCA) has published detailed guidance on how businesses that it supervises for MLTF purposes should identify and treat PEPs. Businesses may find this guidance useful in determining the approach that they should take to identifying and applying EDD to PEPs.

5.3.22 Recital 33 of the EU Directive (which the 2017 Regulations bring into UK law) makes it clear that refusing a business relationship with a person solely on the basis that they are a PEP is contrary to the spirit and letter of the EU Directive, and of the FATF standards. Businesses must instead mitigate and manage any identified MLTF risks, and should refuse business relationships only when such risk assessments indicate that they cannot effectively mitigate and manage these risks.

Financial sanctions and other prohibited relationships

5.3.23 Businesses must comply with any sanctions, embargos or restrictions in respect of any person or state to which the UN, UK or EU has decided to apply such measures (a list is published by HM Treasury). Businesses may be directed to not enter into business relationships, carry out occasional transactions or proceed with any arrangements already in progress, and have an obligation to report sanctions breaches to HM Treasury’s Office of Financial Sanctions Implementation (OFSI) (separately to the making of an external SAR to the NCA, where appropriate). Depending on the circumstances, sanctions imposed by overseas countries may also apply to UK businesses.

5.3.24 Financial sanctions can be a complex and changeable area. Detailed discussion of it is beyond the scope of this guidance. Businesses should make use of the guidance published by OFSI. OFSI also offer a free e-alerts service to help businesses stay up-to-date with developments in financial sanctions. Businesses should note that 2017 Regulations set out specific reporting obligations for certain businesses, including external accountants, auditors, and tax advisers. A business that fails to comply with its reporting obligations will be committing an offence, which may result in a criminal prosecution or a monetary penalty. For further information on the reporting obligations refer to the OFSI guide to financial sanctions. Businesses unsure of their legal obligations should seek legal advice.

Reliance on other parties

5.3.25 Businesses are permitted to rely on certain other parties (subject to their agreement) to complete all or part of CDD.

5.3.26 This is permitted only if the other party is a member of the regulated sector in the UK, or subject, in an EEA or non-EEA state, to an equivalent regulatory regime which includes compliance supervision requirements equivalent to the EU Directive.
5.3.27 Businesses should note that where one party places reliance on another they must enter into an agreement (that should be in writing) to ensure that the other party will provide the CDD documentation immediately on request. An arrangement of this kind can be useful and efficient when the two parties are able to build a relationship of trust, but it should not be entered into lightly. Liability for inadequate CDD remains with the relying party. Businesses placing reliance on another should satisfy themselves with the level of CDD being undertaken.

Parties seeking reliance

5.3.28 A business relying on a third party in this way is not required to apply standard CDD, but it must still carry out a risk assessment and perform ongoing monitoring. That means it should still obtain a sufficient quantity and quality of CDD information to enable it to meet its monitoring obligations.

5.3.29 In addition, the business seeking to rely on a third party remains liable for any CDD failings irrespective of the terms of the CDD agreement.

5.3.30 If relying on a third party, businesses must obtain copies of all relevant information to satisfy CDD requirements. They should also enter into a written arrangement that confirms that the party being relied on will provide copies of identification and verification documentation immediately on request.

Parties granting reliance

5.3.31 A business should consider whether it wishes to be relied upon to perform CDD for another party. Before granting consent, a business that is relied upon must ensure that its client (and any other third party whose information would be disclosed) is aware that the disclosure may be made to the other party and has no objection to the disclosure. It should make sure that:

- it has adequate systems for keeping proper CDD records;
- it can make available immediately on request:
  - any information about the client/BO gathered during CDD; and/or
  - copies of any information provided during client/BO identity/verification or documentation obtained during CDD.
- It can keep those CDD records securely for five years after the end of the business relationship.

Group engagements

5.3.32 When a relevant business contracts with a group of companies that are under the control of a parent undertaking, all of which could be considered clients, it may wish to consider applying CDD in a proportionate, risk-sensitive way by treating the group as a single entity.

Subcontracting

5.3.33 Where a relevant business, A, is engaged by another business, B, to help with work for one of its clients or some other underlying party, C, then A should consider whether its client is in fact B, not C. For example, where there is no business relationship formed, nor is there an engagement letter between A and C, it may be that CDD on C is not required but should instead be completed for B.
5.3.34 On the other hand, where there is significant contact with the underlying party, or where a business relationship with it is believed to have been established, then C may also be deemed a client and CDD may be required for both C and B. In this situation, A may wish to take into account information provided by B and the relationship it has with C when determining what CDD is required under its risk based approach. It should be noted that the same considerations are relevant in networked arrangements, where work is referred between member firms.

Evidence gathering

5.3.35 The 2017 Regulations do not prescribe what information sources a business should consult to perform CDD effectively. There are many possibilities, including direct discussions with the client and collecting information from its websites, brochures and reports, as well as public domain sources. It is particularly important to make sure that the client is who they say they are. Since the purpose of client verification is to check the client identity information already gathered, it is important that the information used at this stage is drawn from independent sources and any identity evidence used should be from an authoritative source.

5.3.36 In higher risk cases businesses must consider whether they need to take extra steps to increase the depth of their CDD knowledge. These might include more extensive internet and media searches covering the client, key counterparties, the business sectors and countries and requests for additional identity evidence. Subscription databases can be a quick way to access this kind of public domain information, and they will often reveal links to known associates (companies and individuals) as well.

5.3.37 Client verification means to verify on the basis of documents or information obtained from a reliable source which is independent of the person whose identity is being verified. Documents issued or made available by an official body can be regarded as being independent.

5.3.38 It is important that verification procedures are undertaken on a risk-sensitive basis. Refer to APPENDIX C for a non-exhaustive list of documents that can be used for verification purposes. Further help can be found in the JMLSG guidance.

Copies of documents

Certification

5.3.39 Businesses should consider how they will demonstrate the provenance of document copies. When the original was seen by a relevant employee it should be sufficient for that person to endorse the copy to that effect, including the date on which it was seen. When the copy originates from outside the business, the standing of the person who certified it should be considered and relevant employees should be aware of the risks associated with certified copies (for example, that such documents may be falsified). It may be necessary to stipulate acceptable sources for certified copies; for example, businesses may decide to restrict acceptance to those persons in the permitted categories for reliance (see 5.3.26 of this guidance).

Annotation

5.3.40 Where a document is not an original but could be mistaken for one, it should be annotated to that effect. This is particularly true for documents sourced from the internet, such as downloads from Companies House, from the website of a regulator, stock exchange or government department, or from any other suitable source. Documents of this kind should carry an indication of the source and when the download took place – sometimes in the automatic page footers/headers – and these would satisfy this requirement. Where necessary and taking a risk based approach, such documents (whether downloaded or otherwise) should be validated with an authoritative source such as a government agency.

Use of electronic data

5.3.41 A number of subscription services give access to identity-related information. Many of them can be accessed on-line and are often used to replace or supplement paper-based verification checks. Companies House registers of persons of significant control may be used but may not be relied upon in the absence of other supporting evidence.

5.3.42 Before using any electronic service, question whether the information is reliable, comprehensive and accurate. Consider the following:

- Does the system draw on multiple sources? A single source (e.g., the electoral register) is not usually sufficient. A system that combines negative and positive data sources is generally the more robust.

- Are the sources checked and reviewed regularly? Systems that do not update their data regularly are generally more prone to inaccuracy.

- Are there control mechanisms to ensure data quality and reliability? Systems should have built-in data integrity checks which, ideally, are sufficiently transparent to prove their effectiveness.

- Is the information accessible? It should be possible to either download and store search results in electronic form, or print a hardcopy that contains all the details required (name of provider, original source, date, etc.).

- Does the system provide adequate evidence that the client is who they claim to be? Consideration should be given as to whether the evidence provided by the system has been obtained from an official source, e.g., certificate of incorporation from the official company registry.

5.4 What happens if CDD cannot be performed?

When delays occur

5.4.1 The business should still gather enough information to form a general understanding of the client’s identity so that it remains possible to assess the risk of MLTF.

5.4.2 The 2017 Regulations do recognise that CDD will sometimes need to be completed while the business relationship is established, rather than before. But delays of this kind are only permissible when there is little risk of MLTF and it is necessary to avoid interrupting the normal conduct of business. Such exceptions will be rare (see 5.4.6 of this guidance).

5.4.3 When most of the information needed has been collected before the business relationship has begun, it may be acceptable to have a short extension (to allow for information collection to be completed) provided the cause of the delay is administrative or logistical, not the client’s reluctance to cooperate. To ensure the reasons are valid, and should not give rise to suspicions of MLTF, it is recommended that each extension be considered individually and agreed by the MLRO.

5.4.4 Extensions to the CDD schedule should be specific, well-defined and time-limited. There should be no granting of general extensions (such as for particular client types).
5.4.5 No client engagement (including transfers of client money or assets) should be completed until CDD has been completed in accordance with the business’ own procedures.

5.4.6 Provided that CDD is completed as soon as practicable, verification procedures may be completed during the establishment of a business relationship if it is necessary not to interrupt the normal course of business and there is little risk of MLTF. In some situations it may be necessary to carry out CDD while commencing work because it is urgent. Such situations could include:

- some insolvency appointments;
- appointments that involve ascertaining the client’s legal position or defending them in legal proceedings;
- response to an urgent cyber incident; or
- when it is critically important to preserve or extract data or other assets without delay.

5.4.7 It is recommended that these categories are considered carefully and defined by the MLRO to ensure that the reasons for any extension are appropriate.

Cessation of work and suspicious activity reporting

5.4.8 If a prospective or existing client refuses to provide CDD information, the work must not proceed and any existing relationship with the client must be terminated. However in many cases inability to complete CDD is not a circumstance where an insolvency practitioner can resign and so an appropriate risk based approach should be adopted where the client’s management are not cooperative. Consideration must also be given to whether or not a SAR should be submitted to the NCA under POCA or TA 2000 (see Section six of this guidance).
6 SUSPICIOUS ACTIVITY REPORTING

- What must be reported?
- When and how should an external SAR be made to the NCA?
- What is consent and why is it important?
- What should happen after an external SAR has been made?

6.1 What must be reported?

The reporting regime

6.1.1 Businesses must have internal reporting procedures that enable relevant employees to disclose their knowledge or suspicions of MLTF. A nominated officer must be appointed to receive these disclosures (this guidance assumes that this role will be filled by the MLRO). In the regulated sector it is an offence for someone who knows or suspects that MLTF has taken place (or has reasonable grounds) not to report their concerns to their MLRO (or, in exceptional circumstances, straight to the NCA).

6.1.2 The MRLO has a duty to consider all such internal SARs. If the MLRO also suspects MLTF when an external SAR must be made to the NCA. Typically the MRLO’s knowledge or suspicions will arise (directly or indirectly) out of the internal SARs they receive.

6.1.3 Similar ‘failure to disclose’ provisions are found in The TA 2000.

6.1.4 The key elements required for a SAR (suspicion, crime, proceeds) are set out below.

Suspicion

6.1.5 There is very little guidance on what constitutes ‘suspicion’ so the concept remains subjective. Some pointers can be found in case law, where the following observations have been made. Suspicion is:

- a state of mind more definite than speculation but falling short of evidence-based knowledge;
- a positive feeling of actual apprehension or mistrust;
- a slight opinion, without sufficient evidence.

Suspicion is not:

- a mere idle wondering;
- a vague feeling of unease.

6.1.6 A SAR must be made where there is knowledge or suspicion of money laundering, but there is no requirement to make speculative SARs. If, for example, a suspicion is formed that someone has failed to declare all of their income for the last tax year, to assume that they had done the same thing in previous years would be speculation in the absence of specific supporting information. Similarly, the purchase of a brand new Ferrari by a client’s financial controller is not, in itself, suspicious activity. However, inconsistencies in accounts for which the financial controller is responsible could raise speculation to the level of suspicion.

6.1.7 A SAR is also required when there are ‘reasonable grounds’ to know or suspect. This is an objective test; i.e., the standard of behaviour expected of a reasonable person in the same position. Claims of ignorance or naivety are no defence.
6.1.8 It is important for individuals to make enquiries that would reasonably be expected of someone with their qualifications, experience and expertise, and as long as the enquiries fall within the normal scope of the engagement or business relationship. In other words, they should exercise a healthy level of professional scepticism and judgement and, if unsure about what to do, consult their MLRO (or similar) in accordance with the business’ own procedures. If in doubt, err on the side of caution and report to the MLRO.

6.1.9 The information or knowledge that gave rise to the suspicions must have come to the individual in the course of business in the regulated sector.

Crime

6.1.10 Criminal conduct is behaviour which constitutes a criminal offence in the UK or, if it happened overseas, would have been an offence had it taken place in any part of the UK.

6.1.11 There is an overseas conduct exception, set out in Section 330 (7A) of POCA, which describes the circumstances in which there is no requirement to report overseas matters of this kind:

- the conduct is reasonably believed to have taken place overseas; and
- it was lawful where it took place; and
- the maximum sentence had it happened in the UK would be less than 12 months.

(For offences under the Gaming Act 1968, the Lotteries and Amusements Act 1976 and Section 23 or 25 of the FSMA 2000 the exemption still applies even if the UK sentence is more than 12 months.)

Because these tests are complex and burdensome, MLROs may seek legal advice to resolve any doubts.

6.1.12 There is no similar overseas conduct exemption for reporting suspicions of terrorist financing.

6.1.13 In most cases of suspicious activity the reporter will have a particular type of criminal conduct in mind, but this is not always the case. Some transactions or activities so lack a commercial rationale or business purpose that they give rise to a general suspicion of MLTF. UK law defines money laundering widely; any criminal conduct that results in criminal property is classified as money laundering. Individuals are not required to become experts in the wide range of criminal offences that lead to money laundering, but they are expected to recognise any that fall within the scope of their work. Exercise professional scepticism and judgement at all times.

6.1.14 An innocent error or mistake would not normally give rise to criminal proceeds (unless a strict liability offence). If a client is known or believed to have acted in error, they should have the situation explained to them. They must then promptly bring their conduct within the law to avoid committing a money laundering offence. Where there is uncertainty because certain legal issues lie outside the competence of the practitioner, the client should be referred to an appropriate specialist or legal professional.

Proceeds

6.1.15 Criminal proceeds can take many forms. Cost savings (as a result of tax evasion or ignoring legal requirements) and other less obvious benefits can be proceeds of crime.
Where criminal property is used to acquire more assets, these too become criminal property. It is important to note that there is no question of a de minimis value.

6.1.16 If someone knowingly engages in criminal activity with no benefit, then they may have committed some offence other than money laundering (it will often be fraud) and there is no obligation to make a SAR. Businesses should nonetheless consider whether they are under some other professional reporting obligations, such as those referred to in 6.4.20 of this guidance.

A checklist for the SAR reporting process can be found in APPENDIX D.

OFFENCE: failure to disclose

6.1.17 Individuals should make sure that any information in their possession which is part of the required disclosure is passed to the MLRO as soon as practicably possible.

6.1.18 Where, as a result of an internal SAR, the MLRO obtains knowledge or forms a suspicion of MLTF, they must as soon as practicable make an external SAR to the NCA. The MLRO may commit a POCA Section 331 offence if they fail to do so.

Some examples

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Example 1 – Shoplifting</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The business acts for a retail client and you are aware of some instances of shoplifting.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Report</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Do not report</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>No further work is required to find out any of the listed details.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Example 2 – Overpaid invoices</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Some customers of your client have overpaid their invoices. The client retains overpayments and credits them to the profit and loss account.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Report</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Example 2 – Overpaid invoices

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Do not report</th>
<th>If you:</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• believe that the client has no dishonest intent to permanently deprive the overpaying party. Reasons for such a belief may include:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>o Systems operated by the client to notify the customer of overpayments.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>o Evidence that requested repayments are processed promptly.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>o Evidence that the client has attempted to contact the overpaying party.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>o The client has sought and is following legal advice in respect of the overpayments.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Example 3 – Illegal dividends

Your client has paid a dividend based on draft accounts. Subsequent adjustments reduce distributable reserves to the extent that the dividend is now illegal.

| Report | If there is suspicion of fraud. |
| Do not report | If there is no such suspicion. The payment of an illegal dividend is not a criminal offence under the Companies Act. |

Example 4 – Invoices lacking commercial rationale

Your client plans to expand its operations into a new country of operation. They have engaged a consultancy firm to oversee the implementation although it is not clear what the firm’s role is. Payments made to the consultancy firm are large in comparison to the services provided and some of the expenses claimed are for significant sums to meet government officials’ expenses. The country is one where corruption and facilitation payments are known to be widespread. You ask the Finance Director about the matter and he thought that such payments were acceptable in the country in question.

| Report | If you suspect that bribes have been paid. |
| Do not report | If you do not suspect illegal payments. |

Money laundering offences include conduct occurring overseas which would constitute an offence if it had occurred in the UK.

Example 5 – Concerted price rises

Your client’s overseas subsidiary is one of three key suppliers of goods to a particular market in Europe. The subsidiary has recently significantly increased its prices and margins and its principal competitors have done the same. There has been press speculation that the suppliers acted in concert, but publicly they have cited increased costs of production as driving the increase. Whilst this explains part of the reason for the increase, it is not the only reason because of the increase in margins. On reviewing the accounting records, you see significant payments for consultancy services and seek an explanation. Apparently, they relate to an assessment of the impact of the price increase on the market as well as some compensation for any losses the competitors suffered on their business outside of Europe. Some of the increased profits have flowed back to the UK parent company. There is not a criminal cartel offence under local law but there is under UK law.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Report</th>
<th>If you suspect a price fixing cartel.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Do not report</td>
<td>If you do not suspect criminal activity.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Example 6 – Breaches of overseas laws

You suspect that one of your client’s overseas subsidiaries has been in breach of a number of local laws. In particular, dividends have been paid to the parent company in breach of local exchange control requirements.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Report</th>
<th>If you suspect that in order for the payment to have been made an act (such as fraud) that would have been a criminal offence had it occurred in the UK, has taken place.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Do not report if</td>
<td>If you decide that no act that would have been a criminal offence had it taken place in any part of the UK, has occurred.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Money laundering offences include conduct occurring overseas which would constitute an offence if it had occurred in the UK (carrying a custodial sentence of 12 months or more). The UK has no exchange control legislation.

Failure to disclose: defences and exemptions

6.1.19 There are the following defences against failure to disclose:

- There is a reasonable excuse for not making the disclosure. However, it is anticipated that only relatively extreme circumstances – such as duress or threats to safety – would be accepted;
- The privileged circumstances exemption applies (see 6.2.22 of this guidance);
- The relevant employee concerned did not know about or suspect MLTF and had not received the training required by Regulation 21 of the 2017 Regulations. As no training was provided, the relevant employee is not bound by the objective test – i.e., to always report when there are ‘reasonable grounds’ for knowledge or suspicion – but the business has committed an offence by failing to provide training.

OFFENCE: Tipping off

6.1.20 This offence is committed when a relevant employee in the regulated sector discloses that:

- a SAR has been made and this disclosure is likely to prejudice any subsequent investigation; or
• an investigation into allegations of MLTF is underway (or being contemplated) and this disclosure is likely to prejudice that investigation.

6.1.21 Considerable care must be taken when communicating with clients or third parties after any form of SAR has been made. Before disclosing any of the matters reported it is important to consider carefully whether to do so is likely to constitute an offence of tipping off or prejudicing an investigation (see 6.1.20 and 6.1.30 of this guidance). It is suggested that businesses keep records of these deliberations and the conclusions reached (see Section seven of this guidance).

6.1.22 No tipping off offence is committed under Section 333A of POCA, if the relevant person did not know or suspect that their disclosure was likely to prejudice any subsequent investigation.

6.1.23 There are a number of exceptions to this prohibition on disclosing the existence of a SAR or an actual or contemplated investigation. A person does not commit an offence if they make a disclosure:

• to a fellow relevant employee of the same undertaking; or
• to a relevant professional adviser in a different undertaking if both people are located in either an EEA state or a state with equivalent anti-money laundering requirements, and both undertakings share common ownership, management or control; or
• to an anti-money laundering supervisory authority as defined by the 2017 Regulations; or
• for the purposes of the prevention, investigation or prosecution of a criminal offence in the UK or elsewhere, or an investigation under POCA, or the enforcement of any court order under POCA; or
• following notification that the moratorium period for a consent SAR has been extended beyond 31 days, to the subject of the report (provided the content of the SAR is not disclosed). Businesses may wish to seek legal advice.

6.1.24 An offence is not committed if a relevant professional adviser makes a disclosure to another within the same profession (e.g. accountancy) but from a different business, who is of the same professional standing (including with respect to their duties of professional confidentiality and protection of personal data), when that disclosure:

• relates to a single client or former client of both advisers; and
• involves a transaction or the provision of a service that involves both of them; and
• is made only for the purpose of preventing a money laundering offence; and
• is made to a person in an EU member state or a state imposing equivalent MLTF requirements.

6.1.25 No disclosure offence is committed if a relevant employee attempts to dissuade their client from conduct amounting to an offence. No tipping off offence is committed when enquiries are made of a client regarding something that properly falls within the normal scope of the engagement or business relationship. For example, if a business discovers an invoice that has not been included on a client’s tax return, then the client should be asked about it.
6.1.26 Although normal commercial enquiries (perhaps to understand a particular transaction) would not generally lead to tipping off, care is required nonetheless. Enquiries should be confined to what is required by the ordinary course of business. No attempt should be made to investigate matters unless to do so is within the scope of the professional work commissioned. It is important to avoid making accusations or suggesting that anyone is guilty of an offence.

6.1.27 Continuing work may require that matters relating to the suspicions be discussed with the client’s senior management. This may be of particular importance in audit relationships.

6.1.28 Relevant employees concerned about tipping off may wish to consult their MLRO. In particular, it is important that documents containing references to the subject matter of any SAR is not released to third parties without first consulting the MLRO and, in extreme cases, law enforcement. Examples of such documents include:

- public audit or other attestation reports;
- public reports to regulators;
- confidential reports to regulators (e.g., to the FCA under certain auditing standards);
- provision of information to sponsors or other statements in connection with rule 2.12 of the UK’s stock exchange listing rules;
- reports under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986;
- reports under s218 of the Insolvency Act 1986;
- Companies Act statements on auditor resignations;
- professional clearance/etiquette letters;
- communications to clients of an intention to resign.

6.1.29 MLROs sometimes need advice when formulating instructions to the wider business. Legal advice can be sought from a suitably skilled and knowledgeable professional legal adviser. Recourse can be made to the helplines and support services provided by the professional bodies. Discussion with the NCA and law enforcement may also be valuable, but bear in mind that they cannot provide advice and they are not entitled to dictate the conduct of a professional relationship.

OFFENCE: Prejudicing an investigation

6.1.30 Revealing the existence of a law enforcement investigation can lead to an offence of prejudicing an investigation. There is a defence if the person who made the disclosure did not know or suspect that it would be prejudicial, or did not know or suspect the documents to be relevant, or did not intend to conceal any facts from the person carrying out the investigation.

6.1.31 Falsification, concealment or destruction of documents relevant to an investigation (or causing the same) can also fall within this offence. Again, there is a defence if it was not known or suspected that the documents were relevant, or there was no intention to conceal facts.

6.2 When and how should an external SAR be made to the NCA?

Is a report required?
6.2.1 There are no hard and fast rules for recognising MLTF. It is important for everyone to remain alert to the risks and to apply their professional judgement, experience and scepticism.

6.2.2 Relevant employees must ask themselves whether something they have observed in the course of business has the characteristics of MLTF and, therefore, warrants a SAR. Most businesses include in their standard anti-money laundering systems and controls to enable relevant employees to discuss, with suitable people, whether their concerns amount to reportable knowledge or suspicion. Relevant employees should take advantage of these arrangements.

6.2.3 Once there is the requisite knowledge or suspicion, or reasonable grounds for either, then the relevant employee must submit an internal SAR to their MLRO promptly (or, in exceptional circumstances, straight to the NCA).

6.2.4 Deciding whether or not something is suspicious may require further enquiries to be made with the client or their records (all within the normal scope of the assignment or business relationship). The UK anti-money laundering regime does not prohibit normal commercial enquiries to fulfil client duties, and these may help establish whether or not something is properly a cause for suspicion.

6.2.5 Investigations into suspected MLTF should not be conducted unless to do so would be within the scope of the engagement. Any information sought should be in keeping with the normal conduct of business. Normal business activities should continue (subject to the business’s consideration of the risks involved), with any information or other matters that flow from included in a SAR. To perform additional investigations is not only unnecessary, it is undesirable since it would risk tipping off a money launderer.

6.2.6 Relevant employees may wish to consider the following questions to assist their decision.

Should I submit a report to the MLRO?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Step</th>
<th>Question</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| 1    | • Do I have knowledge or suspicion of criminal activity? or
      • Am I aware of an activity so unusual or lacking in normal commercial rationale that it causes a suspicion of MLTF? |
| 2    | • Do I know or suspect that a benefit arose from the activity in 1? |
| 3    | • Do I think that someone involved in the activity, or in possession of the proceeds of that activity, knew or suspected that it was criminal? |
| 4    | • Can I identify the person (or persons) in possession of the benefit? or
      • Do I know the location of the benefit? or
      • Do I have information that will help identify the person (or persons)? or
      • Do I have information that will help locate the benefits? |

6.2.7 If in doubt, always report concerns to the MLRO.

Internal reports to the MLRO

6.2.8 Only sole practitioners, who employ no relevant employees, have a duty to submit SARs straight to the NCA.
6.2.9 Section 330 of POCA requires all relevant employees to make an internal SAR to their MLRO – reporting to a line manager or colleague is not enough to comply with the legislation. Someone seeking reassurance that their conclusions are reasonable can discuss their suspicions with managers or other colleagues, in line with the business’ procedures.

6.2.10 When more than one relevant employee is aware of the same reportable matter a single SAR can be submitted to the MLRO, but it should contain the names of all those making the SAR. No internal SAR should be made in the name of a relevant employee who is unaware of the existence of the internal SAR. There is no prescribed format for internal SARs to be made to an MLRO.

Onward reports by the MLRO to the NCA

6.2.11 It is the MLRO’s responsibility to decide whether the information reported internally needs to be reported to the NCA. The MLRO is also responsible for deciding whether, (a) consent is required from law enforcement for the engagement or any aspect of it to continue, and (b) how client business should be conducted while a consent decision is awaited. Registering with the NCA SAR Online System is recommended to facilitate timely reporting when an external SAR to be made to the NCA is necessary.

6.2.12 MLROs should approach external reporting with caution. When deciding what to do they should consider the following questions:

- Do I know or suspect (or have reasonable grounds for either) that someone is engaged in MLTF?
- Do I think that someone involved in the activity, or in possession of the proceeds of that activity, knew or suspected that it was criminal?
- From the contents of the internal SAR, can I identify the suspect or the whereabouts of any laundered property?
- Is an application for consent required (see 6.3 of this guidance)?
- Do I believe, or is it reasonable for me to believe, that the contents of the internal SAR will, or may, help identify the suspect or the whereabouts of any laundered property?
- Can I provide the information essential to an external SAR (see 6.2.15 of this guidance) without disclosing information acquired in privileged circumstances? The privilege reporting exemption is limited to relevant professional advisers and is available only to members of professional bodies, such as those listed in schedule 1 of the 2017 Regulations, who also meet the requirements set out in Section 330 (14) of POCA. Further guidance on the privilege reporting exemption can be found in 6.2.22 of this guidance.

6.2.13 The MLRO may want to make reasonable enquiries of other relevant employees and systems within the business. These may confirm the suspicion, but they may also eliminate it, enabling the matter to be closed without the need for a SAR.

6.2.14 There is no prescribed format for an external SAR to the NCA. Various submission methods are available. The NCA SAR Online System is the NCA’s preferred submission mechanism. It is available through the NCA website and allows businesses to make SARs in a secure online environment. The NCA accepts hard copy SARs but will not provide a reference number in response to these.

What information should be included in an external SAR?
6.2.15 Guidance can be found on the NCA website. The following should be regarded as essential information:

- Name of reporter;
- Date of report;
- The name of the suspect or information that may help identify them. This may simply be details of the victim if their identity is known. As many details as possible should be provided to the NCA to assist with the identification of the suspect;
- Details of who else is involved, associated, and how;
- The facts regarding what is suspected and why. The ‘why’ should be explained clearly so that it can be understood without professional or specialist knowledge;
- The relevant NCA glossary code (if applicable);
- The whereabouts of any criminal property, or information that may help locate it, such as details of the victim;
- The actions that the business is taking which require consent (see 6.3 of this guidance)?

6.2.16 All external SARs should be free of jargon and written in plain English.

6.2.17 It is also recommended that reporters:

- do not include confidential information not required by POCA;
- show the name of the business, individual or MLRO submitting the report only once, in the source ID field and nowhere else;
- do not include the names of the relevant employees who made the internal SARs to the MLRO;
- include other parties as ‘subjects’ only when the information is necessary for an understanding of the external SAR or to meet required disclosure standards; and
- highlight clearly any particular concerns the reporter might have about safety (whether physical, reputational or other). This information should be included in the ‘reasons for suspicion/disclosure’ field.

Confidentiality

6.2.18 A correctly made external SAR provides full immunity from action for any form of breach of confidentiality, whether it arises out of professional ethical requirements or a legal duty created by contract (e.g., a non-disclosure agreement).

6.2.19 There will be no such immunity if the external SAR is not based on knowledge or suspicion, or if it is intended to be ‘defensive’ i.e., for the purposes of regulatory compliance rather than because of a genuine suspicion.

Documenting reporting decisions

6.2.20 In order to control legal risks it is important that adequate records of internal SARs are kept. This is usually done by the MLRO and would normally include details of:

- all internal SARs made;
- how the MLRO handled matters, including any requests for further information;
• assessments of the information provided, along with any subsequent decisions about whether or not to await developments or seek extra information;
• the rationale for deciding whether or not to make an external SAR;
• any advice given to engagement teams about continued working and any consent requests made.

These records can be simple or sophisticated, depending on the size of the business and the volume of reporting, but they always need to contain broadly the same information and be supported by the relevant working papers. They are important because they may be needed later if the MLRO or some other person is required to justify and defend their actions.

6.2.21 For the MLRO’s efficiency and ease of reference, a reporting index may be kept and each internal SAR given a unique reference number.

Reporting and the privileged circumstances exemption

6.2.22 Section 330 (10) of POCA contains a privileged circumstances reporting exemption. Members of relevant professional bodies (which are referred to as ‘relevant professional advisers’) who know about or suspect MLTF (or have reasonable grounds for either) are not required to submit a SAR if the information came to them in privileged circumstances (i.e. during the provision of legal advice and acting in respect of litigation). In these circumstances, and as long as the information was not provided with the intention of advancing a crime, then the information must not be reported. The privileged reporting exemption only covers SARs and should not be confused with legal professional privilege, which also extends to other documentation and advice.

6.2.23 In Section 330 (14) of POCA, relevant professional adviser is defined as an accountant, auditor or tax adviser:

- who is a member of a relevant professional body; and
- that body makes provision for:
  - testing professional competence as a condition of admission; and
  - imposing and maintaining professional and ethical standards for members along with sanctions for failures to comply.

However, there is no list of the professional bodies that meet these criteria. If businesses are in any doubt about whether these provisions apply to them, they should consult their own professional body or seek legal advice.

6.2.24 Whether or not the privilege reporting exemption applies to a given situation is a matter for careful consideration. The business may have been providing the client with a variety of services, not all of which would create the circumstances required for the exemption. Consequently, it is strongly recommended that careful records are kept about the provenance of the information under consideration when decisions of this kind are being made. Legal advice may be needed.

6.2.25 Set out below are some examples of work which may fall within privileged circumstances.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Advice on tax law to assist a client in understanding their tax position;</th>
<th>Assisting a client by taking witness statements from him or from third parties in respect of litigation;</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Advice on the legal aspects of a take-over bid;</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Advice on duties of directors under the Companies Act;
Advice to directors on legal issues relating to the Insolvency Act 1986; and Advice on employment law.

Representing a client, as permitted, at a tax tribunal; and
When instructed as an expert witness by a solicitor on behalf of a client in respect of litigation.

6.2.26 Audit work, book-keeping, preparation of accounts or tax compliance assignments are unlikely to take place in privileged circumstances.

Discussion with the MLRO

6.2.27 Given the complexity of these matters – as well as the need for a considered and consistent approach to all decisions, supported by adequate documentation – it is recommended that they are always discussed with the MLRO.

6.2.28 Where the purpose of these discussions is to obtain advice on making a disclosure under Section 330 of POCA they do not affect the applicability of the privilege reporting exemption.

6.2.29 Anyone making an internal SAR is entitled to seek advice from an appropriate specialist (either a person within the business who falls within requirements of Section 330 (7B) of POCA or an external adviser who is similarly entitled to apply the privilege reporting exemption) without affecting the applicability of the privilege reporting exemption.

The crime/fraud exception

6.2.30 Communications that would otherwise qualify for the privilege reporting exemption are excluded from it when they are intended to facilitate or guide someone in committing or advancing some crime or fraud. This is usually the client but could be a third party. An example of such a situation could be where a person seeks tax advice ostensibly to regularise their tax affairs but in reality to help them evade tax by improving their understanding of the issues.

6.2.31 Someone worried that they may be guilty of tax evasion can still seek legal advice from a tax adviser without fear of the exception being invoked. This remains true even when, having received the advice, the person declines a business relationship and the business never knows if the irregularities were rectified. However, if that person’s behaviour leads the business to suspect the advice has been used to further evasion, then a SAR could be required.

6.2.32 Whether privileged circumstances apply in a given situation is a difficult question with a fundamentally legal answer. Businesses are strongly recommended to seek the advice of a professional legal adviser experienced in these matters.

6.3 What is consent and why is it important?

6.3.1 When preparing to make a SAR the MLRO must consider carefully whether the business would commit a money laundering offence if it continued to act as it intends (usually as instructed by the client). In such cases the NCA may, in certain circumstances, provide a defence against money laundering in the form of a consent for the activity in question to go ahead.

Matters requiring consent

6.3.2 Before applying for a consent it is important to consider whether the NCA is in fact able to grant one for the activity in question. The NCA’s powers in this regard are strictly limited to activities that would otherwise be offences under Sections 327, 328 or 329 of POCA (see APPENDIX A). Consent cannot be given for other POCA offences, such as tipping off (Section 333A of POCA) or prejudicing an investigation (Section 342 of POCA), or for any offence under any other law.

6.3.3 When in doubt MLROs should seek advice from the helpline provided by their supervisory body, or else seek legal advice. The NCA will say if something falls outside its powers, but it is not in a position to provide advice about whether or not consent is required in any given situation.

6.3.4 Common situations in which consent may be required include:

- acting as an insolvency officeholder when there is knowledge or a suspicion that either:
  - all or some assets in the insolvency are criminal property; or
  - the insolvent entity may enter into, or become concerned in, an arrangement under Section 328 of POCA;
- designing and implementing trust or company structures (including acting as trustee or company officer) when a suspicion arises that the client is, or will be, using them to launder money;
- acting on behalf of a client in the negotiation or implementation of a transaction (such as a corporate acquisition) in which there is an element of criminal property being bought or sold by the client;
- handling through client accounts money that is suspected of being criminal in origin;
- providing outsourced business processing services to clients when the money is suspected of having criminal origins.

Applying for and receiving consent

6.3.5 Consent may only be sought on the basis of a SAR made under the provisions of Section 338 of POCA (authorised disclosures). The ‘consent required’ option should be selected to alert the NCA and enable it to prioritise the request.

6.3.6 The request should clearly state the reasons underlying the knowledge or suspicion that has given rise to the SAR, as well as the activity in question and the nature of the consent required. Great care is needed to make sure the consent will cover the nature and extent of the intended activity. It should make clear to the NCA exactly what is being requested. Too narrow a consent request could mean repeated subsequent requests are needed, adding cost, creating inefficiency and possibly harming service quality. Too broad or poorly-defined a consent request, on the other hand, could result in the request being refused by the NCA or deemed invalid for not showing clearly which activities would otherwise be offences under Section 327-329 of POCA.

6.3.7 If no refusal has been received within the seven working days following the day of submission (this is the notice period) consent is deemed to have been given and the activity in question can proceed.

6.3.8 For the best chance of a quick response, any critical timings should be explained clearly, and a complex report should always begin with a summary covering the key facts and the nature of the request.

When consent is refused
6.3.9 If consent is refused during the notice period, a further 31 days must pass (starting with the day of refusal) before the activity can continue. This is called the moratorium period. This period can be extended by court order in 31 day increments up to a maximum of 186 days.

6.3.10 It is possible that during either the notice or moratorium periods some law enforcement action (e.g. confiscation) will be taken.

6.3.11 If law enforcement takes no restraining action during the moratorium period, the activity can proceed as originally planned at the end of the moratorium period, however businesses may wish to seek legal advice.

Continuation of work while awaiting a consent decision

6.3.12 Once a consent request has been made, the activity in question must cease unless and until:

- consent has been received; or
- the notice period has expired; or
- consent having been refused during the notice period, the moratorium period has now expired.

To do otherwise is to risk prosecution for a money laundering offence.

6.3.13 If no deliverables are provided until after consent has been obtained it may be acceptable to continue working. Care is needed to make sure the work does not constitute a money laundering offence, particularly involvement in an arrangement under Section 328 of POCA or some other breach of legal or ethical requirements.

6.3.14 In some situations it can be extremely difficult to explain why activity has had to be halted unexpectedly. There is nothing in the UK AML regime that requires a business to lie to its clients, but conversations with the client should be kept to a minimum. When informing clients or anyone else about such delays the business must consider the risk of tipping off or prejudicing an investigation and may wish to seek legal advice.

6.4 What should happen after an external SAR has been made?

Client relationships

6.4.1 After a SAR has been submitted the business need not stop working unless consent has been requested (see 1.3.12 of this guidance). The activity in question must not go ahead when consent has been sought but refused.

6.4.2 Even when consent is not required, if a SAR involves a client or their close associate the business may wish to consider whether the suspicion is such that for professional or commercial reasons it no longer wishes to act for them.

6.4.3 Particular challenges may arise out of the requirement for auditors to file resignation statements at Companies House. Consider these carefully to make sure that statutory and professional duties are met without including information that could constitute tipping off. There is no legal mechanism for obtaining NCA clearance for these statements or any other documents that might relate to a resignation. In complex cases a business may want to discuss the matter with the NCA or other law enforcement agency (to understand the law enforcement perspective). Document the discussions carefully. At times, MLROs may also need this kind of advice to help them formulate instructions for the wider business.
Data protection - including subject access requests

6.4.4 Under the Data Protection Act 1998 businesses need not comply with data subject access requests that are likely to prejudice the prevention or detection of crime, or the capture or conviction of offenders. Similarly, personal data that relates to knowledge or suspicion of MLTF (i.e., data that has been processed to help prevent or detect crime) need not be disclosed under a subject access request if to do so could constitute tipping off. Both of these exceptions apply to the personal data likely to be contained in records relating to internal MLTF reports and SARs.

6.4.5 Data exempt from one subject access request may no longer be exempt at the time of a subsequent request (perhaps because the original suspicion has by then been proved false). When a business receives a data subject access request covering personal data in its possession, it should always consider whether the exception applies to that specific request regardless of any history of previous requests relating to the same data. These deliberations will usually involve the MLRO and the data protection officer. It is recommended that the thinking behind any decision to grant or refuse access is documented.

Production orders, further information orders and other requests for information

6.4.6 The NCA or other law enforcement authority may seek further information about a SAR (usually via the MLRO). Businesses should have in place systems to enable a full and rapid response to such enquiries, and any enquiries from law enforcement regarding a business relationship. It is recommended that the enquirer’s identity is formally verified before a response is provided. This can most easily be done by noting the caller’s name and agency/force and then calling them back through their main switchboard. The NCA have a contact centre for such purposes.

6.4.7 To the extent that the request is simply to clarify the contents of a SAR, a response can be given without further formalities.

6.4.8 If a request is received from NCA other than in relation to a SAR, or from a source other than the NCA, then it is recommended that, any further disclosure should normally be made only in response to the exercise of a statutory power to obtain information (as contained in the relevant legislation) or in line with professional guidance on confidentiality and disclosures in the public interest. This approach is not intended to be uncooperative or obstructive. However, insisting on compulsion will protect the business against accusations of breach of confidentiality. When the business is compelled in this way, client or other third-party consent is not required, but nor should it be sought because of the risk of tipping off.

6.4.9 Before responding to an order to produce information, businesses should make sure that they understand:

- the authority under which the request is being made;
- the extent of the information requested;
- the timetable and mechanism for providing the information; and
- what parts of the information should be excluded (i.e., because they are subject to legal privilege).

6.4.10 If in any doubt seek legal advice and keep records of how the issues were judged.
Requests arising from a change of professional advisor (professional enquiries)

Requests regarding CDD information

6.4.11 In this situation the disclosure request can be made under regulation 39 of the 2017 Regulations (which covers reliance), or else the new adviser may simply want copies of identification evidence to help in its own identification procedures.

6.4.12 Businesses should not release confidential information without the client’s consent. If reliance is being placed on another business (see 5.3.25 of this guidance) then Section seven of this guidance (on record keeping) should be consulted.

Requests for information regarding suspicious activity

6.4.13 It is recommended that these requests are declined. The risk of tipping off greatly restricts the ability to make disclosures of this type.

6.4.14 Accountants who are relevant professional advisers are reminded that they do not commit a tipping off offence if they share information with another accountant of similar standing provided the information satisfies all of the following:

- it relates to the same client or former client of both advisers;
- it covers a transaction or provision of services that involved both of them;
- it was disclosed only for the purpose of preventing a money laundering offence;
- it was disclosed to a person in an EU member state or another state which imposes equivalent anti-money laundering requirements.

Reporting to other bodies

6.4.15 Businesses should have regard to their other obligations, such as their reporting responsibilities under the International Auditing Standards, statutory regulatory returns, or the reporting of misconduct by fellow members of a professional body. In all these cases the risk of tipping off must be considered and the offence avoided. Accountants may wish to contact their professional body for advice, or else seek legal advice.

6.4.16 A tipping off offence is not committed under Section 333A of POCA, if the relevant employee did not know or suspect that they were likely to prejudice any subsequent investigation. Situations in which this defence can apply include:

- reporting to your own professional body if it is an anti-money laundering supervisory authority (Section 333D of POCA);
- reporting a matter of material significance to the UK charity regulators: Charities Commission for England and Wales, Office of the Scottish Charity Regulator and Charity Commission for Northern Ireland.
7 RECORD KEEPING

- Why may existing document retention policies need to be changed?
- What should be considered regarding retention policies?
- What considerations apply to SARS and consent requests?
- What considerations apply to training records?
- Where should reporting records be located?
- What do businesses need to do regarding third-party arrangements?
- What are the requirements regarding the deletion of personal data?

7.1 Why may existing document retention policies need to be changed?

7.1.1 Records relating to CDD, the business relationship and occasional transactions must be kept for five years from the end of the client relationship.

7.1.2 All records related to an occasional transaction must be retained for five years after the date of the transaction.

7.1.3 The 2017 Regulations do not specify the medium in which records should be kept, but they must be readily retrievable.

7.2 What should be considered regarding retention policies?

7.2.1 Businesses must be aware of the interaction between of MLTF laws and regulations with the requirements of the Data Protection Regime. The Data Protection Regime requires that personal information be subject to appropriate security measures and retained for no longer than necessary for the purpose for which it was originally acquired.

7.3 What considerations apply to SARs and consent requests?

7.3.1 No retention period is officially specified for records relating to:

- internal reports;
- the MLRO’s consideration of internal reports;
- any subsequent reporting decisions;
- issues connected to consent, production of documents and similar matters;
- suspicious activity reports and consent requests sent to the NCA, or its responses.

7.3.2 Since these records can form the basis of a defence against accusations of MLTF and related offences, businesses may decide that five years is a suitable retention period for them.

7.4 What considerations apply to training records?

7.4.1 Businesses must demonstrate their compliance with regulations that place a legal obligation on them to make sure that certain of their relevant employees are, (a) aware of the law relating to MLTF, and (b) trained regularly in how to recognise and deal with transactions and other events which may be related to MLTF.

7.4.2 These records should show the training that was given, the dates on which it was given, which individuals received the training and the results from any assessments.
7.5 Where should reporting records be located?

7.5.1 Records related to internal and external SARs of suspicious activity are not part of the working papers relating to client assignments. They should be stored separately and securely as a safeguard against tipping off and inadvertent disclosure to someone making routine use of client working papers.

7.6 What do businesses need to do regarding third-party arrangements?

7.6.1 A business may arrange for another organisation to perform some of its AML related activities – CDD or training, for example. In which case, it must also ensure that the other party’s record keeping procedures are good enough to demonstrate compliance with the MLTF obligations, or else it must obtain and store copies of the records for itself. It must also consider how it would obtain its records from the other party should they be needed, as well as what would happen to them if the other party ceased trading.

7.7 What are the requirements regarding the deletion of personal data?

7.7.1 Regulation 39(4) of the 2017 Regulations require that once the periods specified in 7.1 of this guidance have expired, the business deletes any personal data unless:

- The business is required to retain it under statutory obligation, or
- the business is required to retain it for legal proceedings, or
- the data subject has consented to the retention.

7.7.2 The business is not required to keep any records for more than 10 years after the end of the business relationship.
8 TRAINING AND AWARENESS

- Who should be trained and who is responsible for it?
- What should be included in the training?
- When should training be completed?

8.1 Who should be trained and who is responsible for it?

8.1.1 The regulations require that all ‘relevant employees’ (including partners) are made aware of MLTF law and are trained regularly to recognise and deal with transactions which may be related to MLTF, as well as to identify and report anything that gives grounds for suspicion (see Section six of this guidance).

8.1.2 Thought should also be given to who else might need AML training.

8.1.3 A designated person should be made responsible for the detail of AML training. This could be the MLRO or a member of senior management. There should be a mechanism to ensure that relevant employees complete their AML training promptly.

8.1.4 Someone accused of a failure-to-disclose offence has a defence if:
- they did not know or suspect that someone was engaged in money laundering even though they should have; but
- their employer had failed to provide them with the appropriate training.

8.1.5 This defence – that the relevant employee did not receive the required AML training – is likely to put the business at risk of prosecution for a regulatory breach.

8.2 What should be included in the training?

8.2.1 Training can be delivered in several different ways: face-to-face, self-study, e-learning, video presentations, or a combination of all of them.

8.2.2 The programme itself should include:
- an explanation of the law within the context of the business’s own commercial activities;
- so-called ‘red flags’ of which relevant employees should be aware when conducting business, which would cover all aspects of the MLTF procedures, including CDD (for example those that might prompt doubts over the veracity of evidence provided) and SARs (for example what might prompt suspicion); and
- how to deal with transactions that might be related to MLTF (including how to use internal reporting systems), the business’s expectations of confidentiality, and how to avoid tipping off (see Section six of this guidance);
- The relevant data protection requirements

8.2.3 Training programmes should be tailored to each business area and cover the business’ procedures so that relevant employees understand the MLTF risks posed by the specific services they provide and types of client they deal with, and so are able to appreciate, on a case-by-case basis, the approach they should be taking. Furthermore, businesses should aim to create an AML culture in which relevant employees are always alert to the risks of MLTF and habitually adopt a risk based approach to CDD.
8.2.4 Records should be kept showing who has received training, the training received and when training took place (see 7.4 of this guidance). These records should be used so as to inform when additional training is needed – e.g. when the MLTF risk of a specific business area changes, or when the role of a relevant employee changes.

8.2.5 A system of tests, or some other way of confirming the effectiveness of the training, should be considered.

8.2.6 The overall objective of training is not for relevant employees to develop a specialist knowledge of criminal law. However, they should be able to apply a level of legal and business knowledge that would reasonably be expected of someone in their role and with their experience, particularly when deciding whether to make an internal SAR to the MLRO.

8.3 When should training be completed?

8.3.1 Businesses need to make sure that new relevant employees are trained promptly.

8.3.2 The frequency of training events can be influenced by changes in legislation, regulation, professional guidance, case law and judicial findings (both domestic and international), the business’ risk profile, procedures, and service lines.

8.3.3 It may not be necessary to repeat a complete training programme regularly, but it may be appropriate to provide relevant employees with concise updates to help refresh and expand their knowledge and to remind them how important effective anti-money laundering work is.

8.3.4 In addition to training, businesses are encouraged to mount periodic MLTF awareness campaigns to keep relevant employees alert to individual and firm-wide responsibilities.
GLOSSARY

Accountancy services For the purpose of this guidance this includes any service provided under a contract for services (i.e., not under a contract of employment) which requires the recording, review, analysis, calculation or reporting of financial information.

Anti-money laundering supervisory authority A body identified by Regulation 7 of the 2017 Regulations as being empowered to supervise the compliance of businesses with the 2017 Regulations. The professional bodies designated as anti-money laundering supervisory authorities are listed in Schedule 1 of the 2017 Regulations.

Arrangement Any activity that facilitates money laundering, including planning and preparation.

Auditor Any business or individual who is — a statutory auditor within the meaning of Part 42 of the Companies Act 2006(a) (statutory auditors), when carrying out statutory audit work within the meaning of Section 1210 of that Act (meaning of statutory auditor), or (ii) a local auditor within the meaning of Section 4(1) of the Local Audit and Accountability Act 2014 (general requirements for audit) (b), when carrying out an audit required by that Act.

Business / Businesses A company, partnership, individual or other organisation which undertakes defined services. This includes accountancy practices, whether structured as partnerships, sole practitioners or corporates.

Business relationship a business, professional or commercial relationship between a relevant person and a customer, which—
(a) arises out of the business of the relevant person, and
(b) is expected by the relevant person, at the time when contact is established, to have an element of duration.

CCAB The Consultative Committee of Accountancy Bodies represents the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales, the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Scotland, the Institute of Chartered Accountants in Ireland, the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants and the Chartered Institute of Public and Finance and Accountancy.

Client Someone in a business relationship, or carrying out an occasional transaction, with a business.

Consent Permission to carry out any activity which would constitute a money laundering offence without that permission. Generally granted by the NCA. The definition of, and governing legislation for, consents can be found in s335 of POCA, which also deals with the passing of consent from the MLRO to the individual concerned s336 of POCA.

Criminal property The benefit of criminal conduct where the alleged offender knows or suspects that the property in question represents such a benefit (s340 of POCA).

Customer Due Diligence (CDD) The process by which the identity of a client is established and verified, for both new and existing clients.

Defined services Activities performed in the course of business by organisations or individuals as auditors, external accountants, insolvency practitioners or tax advisers (Regulation 8(c), 2017 Regulations), or as trust and company services providers (Regulation 8(e), 2017 Regulations). It also includes services under the designated professional body provisions of part XX, Section 326 of FSMA.
2000 or otherwise providing financial services under the oversight of the appropriate professional body.

De minimis

EEA European Economic Area. Countries which form the combined membership of the European Union (EU) and the European Free Trade Association (EFTA).

Engagement agreement concerning the delivery of a specific service within a business relationship.

EU directive Refers in this document to the Fourth Money Laundering Directive.

External accountant A firm or sole practitioner who by way of business provides accountancy services to other persons when providing such services (Regulation 11(C), 2017 Regulations).

Family member of a politically exposed person includes spouse or civil partner; children of that person and their spouses and partners; and parents of that person.

FATF Financial Action Task Force. Created by G7 nations to fight money laundering.

Guidance Advice which is: (a) issued by a supervisory authority or any other appropriate body; (b) approved by HM Treasury; and (c) published in a manner approved by HM Treasury as suitable for bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it. In this document the term also includes guidance for which Treasury approval has been sought and is expected to be granted. Any use of the term ‘guidance’ which falls outside of this definition will not have been italicised in this document. POCA and the 2017 Regulations both set out the circumstances in which the courts (and others) are required to take account of guidance when determining whether an offence has been committed.

Independent legal professional Provider of legal or notarial services as defined in Regulation 12(1), 2017 Regulations.

Internal report A report made to the MLRO of a business.

Insolvency practitioner Any business who acts as an insolvency practitioner within the meaning of s388, Insolvency Act 1986, or art 3, Insolvency (Northern Ireland) Order 1989 (Regulation 11(2), 2017 Regulations).

JMLSG The Joint Money Laundering Steering Group is the body representing UK trade associations in the financial services industry which aims to promote good practice in anti-money laundering and to provide relevant practical guidance.

Known close associate of a politically exposed person means an individual known to have joint beneficial ownership of a legal entity/arrangement or any other close business relations with a politically exposed person; or an individual who has sole beneficial ownership of a legal entity or a legal arrangement which is known to have been set up for the benefit of a politically exposed person (Regulation 35(12) the 2017 Regulations).

MLTF (money laundering and terrorist financing) Defined for the purposes of this document to include those offences relating to terrorist finance which are required to be reported under TA 2000 as well as the money laundering offences defined by POCA.

Moratorium period The 31 days following refusal of a consent request during which time the activity for which consent was sought must cease. Law enforcement may take action during this period.
MLRO Money laundering reporting officer.

Money laundering reporting officer See MLRO, above.

Nominated officer the person who is nominated to receive disclosures under Part 7 POCA or Part 3 TA 2000.

NCA National Crime Agency or equivalent successor body (UKFIU).

Notice period The seven working days following a consent request within which the NCA must respond and during which the activity for which consent is sought must cease until granted.

Occasional transaction A transaction which occurs outside of a business relationship and has a value of more than €15,000.

PEPs Politically exposed persons. As defined in Regulation 35(12), 2017 Regulations. An individual who is entrusted with prominent public functions, other than as a middle-ranking or more junior official. Prominent public functions include head of state, head of government, minister and deputy or assistant ministers; members of parliament or of similar legislative bodies; members of the governing bodies of political parties; members of supreme courts, members of constitutional courts or of any judicial body the decisions of which are not subject to further appeal except in exceptional circumstances; members of courts of auditors or of boards of central banks; ambassadors, charges d’affaires and high ranking officers in the armed forces; members of the administrative, management or supervisory bodies of state-owned enterprises; directors, deputy directors and members of the board or equivalent function of an international organisation.

POCA Proceeds of Crime Act 2002

Prejudicing an investigation An offence related to money laundering, defined under s342, POCA. In summary, it captures the following: disclosure of information likely to prejudice an investigation; falsifying, concealing or destroying documents relevant to a money laundering investigation; or being complicit in behaviour of that sort.

Regulated investment market Within the EEA this has the meaning given by point 14, art 4(1), Markets in Financial Instruments Directive 2004/39/EC (or MiFID). Outside the EEA it means a regulated financial market in which the listed companies are subject to the disclosure obligations contained in international standards equivalent to the specified disclosure obligations.

Regulated sector As defined in Schedule 9, part 1, POCA (includes those who provide defined services).

Relevant employee An employee (including partner) whose work is relevant to compliance with the Regulations, or is otherwise capable of contributing to the identification and mitigation of the risks of money laundering and terrorist financing to which the business is subject, or to the prevention or detection of money laundering and terrorist financing in relation to the business.

Relevant professional adviser An accountant, auditor or tax adviser who is a member of a professional body which: (a) tests competence as a condition of admission to membership; and (b) imposes and maintains professional and ethical standards for its members, with sanctions for non-compliance.

Required disclosures The identity of a suspect (if known); the information or other material on which the knowledge or suspicion of money laundering (or reasonable grounds for it) is based; and the whereabouts of the laundered property (if known).

SAR Suspicious activity report.
SAR glossary of terms Glossary of key terms used by the NCA to give theme to individual SARs and so increase the effectiveness of data mining by the NCA and law enforcement. The general use of these terms is not mandatory.

Senior management means an officer or employee with sufficient knowledge of the firm’s MLTF risk exposure, and of sufficient authority to take decisions regarding its risk exposure (for example, having a role in determining whether high risk clients are taken on).

SOCPA Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005

Source of funds The origin of the funds that are the subject of the business relationship.

Source of wealth The origin of the subject’s total assets.

Suspicious activity report Otherwise known as a SAR (see above).

Tax adviser A firm or sole practitioner who by way of business provides advice about the tax affairs of others, when providing such services (Regulation 11(4) of the 2017 Regulations). Tax compliance services – e.g., assisting in the completion and submission of tax returns – is for the purpose of this document included within the term ‘advice about the tax affairs of others’.

Terrorist financing offences These offences relate to:

- fundraising (s15 TA 2000 (inviting others to provide money or other property with the intention that it will be used for the purposes of terrorism, or with the reasonable suspicion that it will));
- using or possessing terrorist funds (s16 TA 2000 (receiving or possessing money or other property with the intention, or the reasonable suspicion, that it will be used for the purposes of terrorism));
- entering into funding arrangements (s17 TA 2000 (making arrangements as a result of which money or other property is, or may be, made available for the purposes of terrorism – this includes where there is reasonable cause for suspicion));
- money laundering (s18 TA 2000);
- disclosing information related to the commission of an offence (s19 TA 2000); and
- failing to make a disclosure in the regulated sector (ss19 and 21A TA 2000 (as amended)).

Tipping off A money laundering-related offence for the regulated sector, defined under s333A-D, POCA.

UK AML Regime UK anti-money laundering and terrorist financing regime
APPENDIX A: LEGISLATIVE SUMMARIES – PROCEEDS OF CRIME ACT 2002

s327
A person commits an offence if he conceals, disguises, converts, transfers or removes criminal property from England and Wales or from Scotland or from Northern Ireland.

s328
A person commits an offence if he enters into or becomes concerned in an arrangement which he knows or suspects facilitates (by whatever means) the acquisition, retention, use or control of criminal property by or on behalf of another person. A person does not commit the offences above if:

a) He makes an authorised disclosure under Section 338 and (if the disclosure is made before he does the act mentioned in sub Section (1)) he has the appropriate consent;
b) He intended to make such a disclosure but had a reasonable excuse for not doing so;
c) The act he does is done in carrying out a function he has relating to law enforcement.

s329
A person commits an offence if he acquires, uses, or has possession of criminal property. In addition to the s327/328 defences there is also available the defence of having acquired possession of the property for adequate consideration.

s330 Failure to disclose: Regulated sector
A person commits an offence if, during the course of business he develops knowledge or suspicion (or has reasonable grounds for doing so) that another person is engaged in money laundering, and he does not make the required disclosure as soon as is practicable.

The required disclosure is a disclosure of the information or other matter to the MLRO or the NCA.

A person does not commit an offence under this Section if:

a) He has a reasonable excuse for not disclosing the information or other matter;
b) He is a professional legal adviser and the information or other matter came to him in privileged circumstances;
c) He has no actual knowledge or suspicion and has not received AML training.

s333 Tipping off: Regulated sector
A person commits an offence if he knows or suspects that a disclosure has been made, and he makes a disclosure which is likely to prejudice any investigation which might be conducted following the disclosure.

s342 Prejudicing an investigation
A person commits an offence if he knows or suspects that an appropriate officer is conducting or about to conduct a confiscation investigation, a civil recovery investigation, a detained cash investigation or a money laundering investigation and either makes a disclosure which is likely to prejudice it or falsifies, conceals, destroys or otherwise disposes of relevant document or causes another to do so.
APPENDIX B: OUTSOURCING, SUBCONTRACTING AND SECONDMENTS

B.1 Outsourcing and subcontracting arrangements

B.1.1 Where a business chooses to outsource or subcontract work to a third party it is still obliged to maintain appropriate risk management procedures to prevent MLTF. This also requires the business to consider whether the outsourcing or subcontracting increases the risk that it will be involved in, or used for, MLTF, in which case appropriate controls to address that risk should be put in place.

B.1.2 Where a business contracts with a client, it remains responsible for ensuring that it undertakes CDD to UK standards, including maintaining the appropriate records even if execution of all or part of the client work is outsourced or sub-contracted out. Some aspects of CDD such as collecting documentary evidence can also be delegated to an outsourcer or sub-contractor, but the business remains responsible for compliance with UK legislation.

B.1.3 Regardless of any outsourcing or subcontracting arrangement, a business remains responsible for reporting any knowledge or suspicion of MLTF that comes to it in the course of its own business. However a business is not responsible for reporting knowledge or suspicion that comes to the attention of the outsourcer or sub-contractor, where such knowledge or suspicion has not been passed on to the business. Although there is no legal obligation for an outsourcer or subcontractor to report knowledge or suspicion of MLTF to a business, if such a SAR is made, then the business should consider their own reporting obligations. When a sub-contractor is integrated into a UK business it may be appropriate for its relevant employees to be trained in the MLTF procedures adopted by that business so that common standards can be observed.

B.2 Secondees and those temporarily working outside the UK

B.2.1 A secondee is an individual employed by one organisation (the seconder) but acting as an employee of another (the receiver). The formal terms of all secondments should make clear to all concerned how the obligations imposed by the UK AML regime will be applied.

B.2.2 The position of a secondee working temporarily outside the UK or on foreign secondments, or working permanently outside the UK but still within a UK business is difficult. For example the duty to report may be influenced by the terms of the secondment. Issues to consider include:

- If the work outside the UK is part of a UK defined service then in some circumstances it will be reportable.
- If an individual works permanently outside the UK for a UK business, it may be appropriate to consider whether they are working at a separate business or at a branch office of a UK business.
- An individual should be particularly cautious about any decision not to make a SAR on their return to the UK if the information relates to work that they are undertaking in the UK.

B.2.3 Arrangements must be considered on their own facts to determine which policies and procedures the secondee should follow. Businesses may wish to take legal advice in relation to the need for their relevant employees to comply with the UK’s money laundering reporting regime as well as any local legal requirements, and in relation to the drafting of appropriate secondment agreements.
B.3 Reporting requirements for subcontractors and secondees

B.3.1 Where all or part of a piece of work is contracted-out there is no legal requirement for the subcontractor to report suspicious activity to the referring business’ MLRO. However, where the subcontractor notifies the referring business of information which gives rise to a MLTF suspicion, the referring business must consider its own reporting obligations.
APPENDIX C: CLIENT VERIFICATION

Documentation purporting to offer evidence of identity may emanate from a number of sources. These documents differ in their integrity, reliability and independence. Some are issued after due diligence on an individual’s identity has been undertaken; others are issued on request, without any such checks being carried out. There is a broad hierarchy of documents:

- certain documents issued by government departments and agencies, or by a court; then
- certain documents issued by other public sector bodies or local authorities; then
- certain documents issued by regulated firms in the financial services sector; then
- those issued by other firms subject to the Regulations, or to equivalent legislation; then
- those issued by other organisations.

C.1 Individuals

Client identification:

The full name, date of birth and residential address should be obtained.

Client Verification:

A document issued by an official (e.g., government) body is deemed to be independent and reliable source even if provided by the client. Documents should be valid and recent. Documents sourced online should not be accepted if there is any suspicion regarding the provenance of the documents. The following is a suggested non-exhaustive list of sources of evidence.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Risk Profile</th>
<th>Verification</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Individual deemed normal risk</td>
<td>The original, or an acceptably certified copy, of one of the following documents or similar should be seen and a copy retained:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• valid passport</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• valid photo card driving licence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• national Identity card (non UK nationals)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• identity card issued by the Electoral Office for Northern Ireland</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Individual deemed high risk</td>
<td>The original of one of the following documents or similar should be seen and a copy retained:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• valid passport</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• valid photo card driving licence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• national identity card (non UK nationals)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• identity card issued by the Electoral Office for Northern Ireland</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In addition</td>
<td>The original of a second document should be seen and a copy retained. This should be one of the following:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• A valid UK driving licence.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• Recent evidence of entitlement to a state- or local authority-funded benefit (including housing benefit, council tax benefit, tax credits, state pension, educational or other grant).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• Instrument of a court appointment (such as a grant of probate).</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
- Current council tax demand letter or statement.
- HMRC-issued tax notification (NB: employer-issued documents such as P60s are not acceptable).
- End of year tax deduction certificates.
- Current bank statements or credit/debit card statements.
- Current utility bills.

Source of wealth and source of funds

C.1.2 Where appropriate, evidence can be obtained from searching public information sources like the internet, company registers and land registers.

C.1.3 If the client’s funds/wealth have been derived from, say, employment, property sales, investment sales, inheritance or divorce settlements, then it may be appropriate to obtain documentary proof.

C.2 Private companies/LLPs

Client identification

C.2.1 The following information must be obtained and verified:

- full name of company
- registered number
- registered office address and, if different, principal place of business
- any shareholders/members who ultimately own or control more than 25% of the shares or voting rights (directly or indirectly including bearer shares), or any individual who otherwise exercises control over management must be identified (and verified on a risk sensitive basis).
- The identity of any agent or intermediary purporting to act on behalf of the entity and their authorisation to act e.g., where a lawyer engages on behalf of an underlying client.

Unless the entity is listed on a regulated market, reasonable steps should be taken to determine and verify:

- the law to which it is subject
- its constitution (for example via governing documents)
- the full names of all directors (or equivalent) and senior persons responsible for the operations of the company.

Company registers of beneficial ownership may be used but not solely relied upon.

C.3 Listed or regulated entity

Client identification

C.3.1 The following information should be gathered:

- full name
- membership or registration number
- address

Client verification
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Risk Profile</th>
<th>Recommended verification</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Normal/ high risk | One of the following documents should be seen and a copy retained:
• a printout from the web-site of the relevant regulator or exchange (which should be annotated);
• written confirmation of the entity's regulatory or listing status from the regulator or exchange. |

C4. Government or similar bodies

Client identification

C.4.1 The following information should be gathered:
• full name of the body
• main place of operation
• government or supra-national agency which controls it

Client verification

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Risk Profile</th>
<th>Recommended verification</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Normal/ high risk | One of the following documents should be seen and a copy retained:
• a printout from the web-site of the relevant body (which should be annotated).
Additionally for housing associations:
• the printout must contain its registered number, registered company number (where appropriate) and registered address. |
APPENDIX D

Should I report to the MLRO?

- Do I have knowledge or suspicion of criminal activity resulting in someone benefitting?
- Am I aware of an activity so unusual or lacking in normal commercial rationale that it causes a suspicion of money laundering?
- Do I know or suspect a person or persons of being involved in crime, or does another person who I can name have information that might assist in identifying them?
- Do I know who might have received the benefit of the criminal activity, or where the criminal property might be located, or have I got any information which might allow the property to be located?
- Do I think that the person(s) involved in the activity knew or suspected that the activity was criminal?
- Can I explain my suspicions coherently?

As the MLRO, should I report externally?

- Do I know, suspect or have reasonable grounds to know or suspect that another person is engaged in money laundering; and
- did the information or other matter giving rise to the knowledge or suspicion come to me in a disclosure made under s 330, POCA; and
- do I know the name of the other person or the whereabouts of any laundered property from the s 330 disclosure; or
- can I identify the other person or the whereabouts of any laundered property from information or other matter contained in the s 330 disclosure; or
- do I believe, or is it reasonable for me to believe, that the information or other matter contained in the s 330 disclosure will or may assist in identifying the other person or the whereabouts of any laundered property.
- Does the privileged circumstances exemption apply?
- Is consent required?

CHECKLIST: Essential elements of a SAR

- Name of reporter.
- Date of report.
- Who is suspected or information that may assist in ascertaining the identity of the suspect (which may simply be details of the victim and the fact that the victim knows the identity but this is not information to which the business is privy in the ordinary course of its work). The reporter should provide as many details as possible to allow NCA to identify the main subject.
- Who is otherwise involved in or associated with the matter and in what way.
- The facts.
- What is suspected and why
- Information regarding the whereabouts of any criminal property or information that may assist in ascertaining it (which may simply be the details of the victim who has further information but this is not information to which the business is privy in the ordinary course of its work).
- What involvement does the business have with the issue in order that requirements for consent.
- Reports should generally be jargon free and written in plain English.
APPENDIX E: RISK FACTORS

High risk factors

Customer risk factors, including whether—

i. the business relationship is conducted in unusual circumstances;
ii. the customer is resident in a geographical area of high risk (see below);
iii. the customer is a legal person or legal arrangement that is a vehicle for holding personal assets;
iv. the customer is a company that has nominee shareholders or shares in bearer form;
v. the customer is a business that is cash intensive;
vi. the corporate structure of the customer is unusual or excessively complex given the nature of the company’s business;

Product, service, transaction or delivery channel risk factors, including whether—

i. the product involves private banking;
ii. the product or transaction is one which might favour anonymity;
iii. the situation involves non-face-to-face business relationships or transactions, without certain safeguards, such as electronic signatures;
iv. payments will be received from unknown or unassociated third parties;
v. new products and new business practices are involved, including new delivery mechanisms, and the use of new or developing technologies for both new and pre-existing products;
vi. the service involves the provision of nominee directors, nominee shareholders or shadow directors, or the formation of companies in a third country;

Geographical risk factors, including—

i. countries identified by credible sources, such as mutual evaluations, detailed assessment reports or published follow-up reports, as not having effective systems to counter money laundering or terrorist financing;
ii. countries identified by credible sources as having significant levels of corruption or other criminal activity, such as terrorism (within the meaning of Section 1 of the Terrorism Act 2000(a)), money laundering, and the production and supply of illicit drugs;
iii. countries subject to sanctions, embargos or similar measures issued by, for example, the European Union or the United Nations;
iv. countries providing funding or support for terrorism;
v. countries that have organisations operating within their territory which have been designated—
   (aa) by the government of the United Kingdom as proscribed organisations under Schedule 2 to the Terrorism Act 2000(a), or
   (bb) by other countries, international organisations or the European Union as terrorist organisations;
vi. countries identified by credible sources, such as evaluations, detailed assessment reports or published follow-up reports published by the Financial Action Task Force, the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank, the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development or other international bodies or non-governmental organisations as not implementing requirements to counter money laundering and terrorist financing that are consistent with the recommendations published by the Financial Action Task Force in February 2012 and updated in October 2016.
Low risk factors

Customer risk factors, including whether the customer—

i. is a public administration, or a publicly owned enterprise;

ii. is an individual resident in a geographical area of lower risk (see sub-paragraph (c));

iii. is a credit institution or a financial institution which is—

   (aa) subject to the requirements in national legislation implementing the fourth money laundering directive as an obliged entity (within the meaning of that directive), and

   (bb) supervised for compliance with those requirements in accordance with Section 2 of Chapter VI of the fourth money laundering directive;

iv. is a company whose securities are listed on a regulated market, and the location of the regulated market;

Product, service, transaction or delivery channel risk factors, including whether the product or service is—

i. a life insurance policy for which the premium is low;

ii. an insurance policy for a pension scheme which does not provide for an early surrender option, and cannot be used as collateral;

iii. a pension, superannuation or similar scheme which satisfies the following conditions—

   (aa) the scheme provides retirement benefits to employees;

   (bb) contributions to the scheme are made by way of deductions from wages; and

   (cc) the scheme rules do not permit the assignment of a member’s interest under the scheme;

iv. a financial product or service that provides appropriately defined and limited services to certain types of customers to increase access for financial inclusion purposes in an EEA state;

v. a product where the risks of money laundering and terrorist financing are managed by other factors such as purse limits or transparency of ownership;

vi. a child trust fund within the meaning given by Section 1(2) of the Child Trust Funds Act 2004(a);

vii. a junior ISA within the meaning given by regulation 2B of the Individual Savings Account Regulations 1998(b);

Geographical risk factors, including whether the country where the customer is resident, established or registered or in which it operates is—

i. an EEA state;

ii. a third country which has effective systems to counter money laundering and terrorist financing;

iii. a third country identified by credible sources as having a low level of corruption or other criminal activity, such as terrorism (within the meaning of Section 1 of the Terrorism Act 2000(c)), money laundering, and the production and supply of illicit drugs;

iv. a third country which, on the basis of credible sources, such as evaluations, detailed assessment reports or published follow-up reports published by the Financial Action Task Force, the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank, the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development or other international bodies or nongovernmental organisations—

   (aa) has requirements to counter money laundering and terrorist financing that are consistent with the revised Recommendations published by the Financial Action Task Force in February 2012 and updated in October 2016; and

   (bb) effectively implements those Recommendations.
CCAB will not be liable for any reliance you place on the information in this material. You should seek independent advice.

Laws and regulations referred to in this guidance are stated as at 7 March 2018. Every effort has been made to make sure the information it contains is accurate at the time of creation. CCAB cannot guarantee the completeness or accuracy of the information in this guidance and shall not be responsible for errors or inaccuracies. Under no circumstances shall CCAB be liable for any reliance by you on any information in this guidance.